UPHOLDS STATE ON JAP LAW

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Defending the right of the United States to protect her own land against the invasion of aliens, Representative Sisson of Mississippi urged on the House today the necessity of curtailing the treaty making power of the President and the Senate. He advocated the extension of the right of ratifying treaties to the representatives of the people.

Sisson disclaimed any intention of making a war speech and explained that he merely sought to sustain the right of America to control her own soil.

"If any nations," he continued, "should decide that they will dictate how our land laws should be made then we will be unworthy of national existence if we submit to such dictation. Does anyone claim that this is a declaration of war because I announce this truth?

Must Defend States.

"It is no declaration of war for the United States Government to decline to override the rights of a sovereign State at the dictation of a foreign power. If the United States Government, with its army and navy and with brute force, which it has superior to any one of these States, should take away from the State the right to control its domestic concerns, and deliver the State over to the mercies of a flood of aliens, from any nation, then I maintain the Federal Government has prostituted its authority.

"Nothing has been further from my mind than to embarrass or tend to render more difficult the peaceful solution of whatever differences, real or imaginary, which may exist between the friendly government of Japan and our own government. Our officials are to be commended for their wise and earnest effort to maintain peaceful relations between the United States and Japan.

"My judgment is that it only requires patience and cool heads for both countries to arrive at an amicable, fair and just settlement of differences."

Representative Sisson contended that great care should be taken that the treaty making power should not be re-

Has Anybody Lost a Lion? There's One Astray in Scituate

No, it's not a catamount. It's a lion. Anybody lost a lion?

And it has been seen at the very gate of the Glades Club—owned by such men as Charles Francis Adams, 2d, Thomas Lovering and the Hunnewells.

Scituate is talking about it, around the stoves at night, and everywhere a crowd gathers. A dozen different men have seen it.

What is it?

Big as a calf. Tawny yellow. Bushy hair or mane around the neck. Long, tufted tail. Looks like a big cat.

There's the description—put your own name on it. Scituate folks aren't sure. Captain Frederick C. Franzen of the Life Saving Crew, and John Curran, a member of the crew for seventeen years, are watching for it. Franzen has never seen it and wants to be shown. Curran has seen it, and wants to show it to his mates.

Oh yes, it roars, sometimes, at night, as though lonesome, or hungry.

Police in the Hunt.

At 12:05 today Charles Francis Adams 2d, notified the Scituate police to allow hunters to invade the Glades Club grounds, disregarding the trespass signs, and scour the woods for the beast which is believed to have taken refuge there.

Chief Bates' Opinion.

Thomas Bates, chief of the Cohasset police, today refused to discuss the beast hunt. He did say:

"From the description, I think it's a sea cow that has wandered away from the pastures down Cohasset Harbor and don't know the way back."

Harvard Tackles It.

William L. Bernard, Hingham harbor master and a Harvard man, said at 7:25 today:

"It's a dog."

At 8:10 he amended this and declared: "It's a bobcat."

At 9:05 he announced:

"It's a catamount."

At 10:17, after a research in his natural history, he announced his conviction that it was a LION.

At 12:45 he confessed he didn't know what it was.

JUDGE CORBETT TO TAKE BRIDE

Joseph J. Corbett, corporation counsel of the city of Boston, is to become a benedict. He took out a marriage license at the Cambridge City Hall today. His bride-to-be is Miss Elizabeth Nichols of Burton Hall, in the exclusive Dana street section of Cambridge. The marriage license gives Judge Corbett's age as forty-nine and Miss Nichols' as forty-two. The date for the wedding has not yet been announced, but it is expected to take place the middle of next month.

WILLIAM A. BRADY IN AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, May 23.—William A. Brady, the theatrical manager, had a narrow escape from serious injury early today when his limousine skidded and dropped into an excavation at Thirty-fifth street and Seventh avenue. Thomas Murphy, a member of the party with Brady, was thrown through the window of the machine. The others in the car escaped injury.

ORDER REDUCTION IN COAL CHARGES

Y., was ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission today. Corresponding reductions on smaller sizes were also ordered.

SUFFRAGE BOMB IN CARNEGIE LIBRARY

KEIGHLEY, England, May 23.—A suffrage bomb, composed of explosives and nitric acid, was found in the Carnegie Library here today. Although the bomb had an exploding machine affixed to it, this mechanism was not set so as to set off the machine.

CLERK IS SHOT IN WASHINGTON STREET HOLDUP

A man giving the name of Jeremiah Sheehan walked into Harry Stepper's cigar store at No. 981 Washington street today, tried to rob the cash register, shot the clerk, Robert Ezer, was chased up Washington street by a crowd, ran into a policeman's arms at East Dedham street and was locked up.

The store where this bold hold-up was attempted is about opposite the Columbia Theatre and is shadowed heavily by the Elevated structure. The dark day made this section of Washington street especially gloomy, and the passing pedestrians knew nothing of the struggle in the store until two shots rang out from the would-be robber's revolver.

Just as a crowd flocked to the store front, Sheehan burst out and fled up the street, only to be caught within a few blocks.

At East Dedham street police station, where Sheehan was taken, he was charged with assault with a loaded revolver upon Ezer, with intent to rob. Sheehan gave his age as thirty-six and his address as No. 201 Columbus avenue.

Started to Open Cash Drawer.

The store is in charge of Robert Ezer, the clerk. Ezer is twenty-five years old and lives at No. 12 Cobb street, around the corner from the store.

According to Ezer's story to the police, a gray-haired man came into the store about 9 o'clock. The customer made a small purchase, handing Ezer a $10 bill which was changed. The customer then left the store, but remained standing in the street.

Then three other men entered. One walked to the pipe counter in the rear of the store. The second stood facing the cash register in the centre and the third stood at the cigar counter.

Ezer started to wait on the man at the pipe counter. As he did so the man at the cigar case called to him:

"Hey, I'm the man who must be waited on first."

"Naw," said the man at the pipe counter. "I came in first."

Advice Angers Clerk.

This angered Ezer, and the clerk told the man at the cigar counter his advice wasn't needed in running the store.

Meanwhile the man facing the cash register had crawled on all fours behind the counter. As he opened the register the bell inside the register sounded. This startled Ezer, who rushed toward the would-be thief. This man gave the same later of Sheehan. Ezer fell on Sheehan, but was dragged away by the other two men in the store.

A fight followed. Ezer chased Sheehan around the store, with the other two following. Ezer claimed Sheehan drew a revolver and fired twice. Ezer gamely kept after Sheehan. H. Cochran, a jeweler with a place next door to the store, came in at this juncture.

Captured After Chase.

It is charged that Sheehan pointed his revolver at him. Then Sheehan and the other two men dashed into the street, with Sheehan still clasping his revolver in on hand.

In front of No. 11 Cobb street, Simon Goldberg grubbed Sheehan's revolver as the latter ran past. On Cherry street Sheehan was surrounded and captured, after a fight. He was arrested by Patrolman Nelson of the East Dedham street station. Sheehan had $3. He was later arraigned in court on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to rob. Ezer was treated at City Hospital for a bullet wound in his hand.

VESUVIUS IS AGAIN ACTIVE

$1,300 Verdict for Chambermaid of the Touraine

Barbara Foley, a chambermaid of the hotel Touraine, was damages of $1,300 for personal injuries in her suit against the J. R. Whipple Company by a decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court handed down today.

She stepped into a hole in a stairway left by the removal of a stair tread by carpenters. The stairway was in the rear of the Touraine, a building across Tremont street from the hotel, used for sleeping apartments for the maids. The accident happened on November 17, 1908.

AMERICAN KILLED BY MEXICAN TROOPS

DOUGLAS, Ariz., May 23.—Edward Ney, an American, was killed, and three Texicans were badly wounded in a pitched fight early today between five American cattle rustlers and Mexican troops guarding the border near Canon Bonita, State of Sonora. The rustlers had a drove of 90 beeves which they were trying to get across the border. The Mexicans took charge of the herd and took it to Agua Prieta.

"BETTER HAD THERE BEEN NO CROSS"

Rev. Dr. Edward Cummings.

"The Garden of Eden story and all the other things that have made up old Christianity have got to go," said the Rev. Dr. Edward Cummings, pastor of the Second Congregational (Unitarian) Church, before the forty-sixth annual convention of the Free Religious Association in Ford Hall today.

Dr. Cummings called all the teachings in the first two chapters of Genesis myths.

"These fables, or myths, as you wish to call them, must go," said Dr. Cummings. "We want to get rid of this story of the Garden of Eden. We want to get rid of this post-mortem Christianity.

"It would have been better had there been no cross.

"I have often told my people in my church this truth. We have made too much of the tragedy of the cross in our religion. In its place I would put a white flag upon every church, and on this white flag I would put a star. That star would stand for a new civilization. It would represent the Christ child, and that flag would stand over every poor tenement of Boston."

HARVARD CLUBS TO GIVE SCHOLARSHIPS

CHECK No 24
Boston, Mass. May 21 1912
Received of the AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY,
Twenty-one hundred and no/100 Dollars
for compensation incurred during strike at Lawrence.
J. E. Atteaux

WOOLEN TREASURER TESTIFIES

The treasurer of the American Woolen Company—the man who drew the $2,100 check to Frederick E. Atteaux—testified today at the Wood-Atteaux-Collins trial that he drew the check at the express order of William M. Wood.

This $2,100 check was one of the two introduced in evidence shortly after the trial was resumed today. Wood, Frederick E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins are charged with conspiring to plant dynamite in Lawrence during the strike there.

The checks were supplemented by receipts, also introduced in evidence. The checks were payable to Atteaux and were for $805 and for $2,100. The receipts for these checks read as follows:

"Received of the American Woolen Company, $805, for expenses incurred during the strike at Lawrence. Approved, Wm. M. Wood, Pres."

This receipt was signed "F. E. Atteaux."

The other receipt read:

"Received of the American Woolen Company, $2100 in full for all claims and demands to date. Approved, Wm. M. Wood."

Atteaux also signed this receipt.

Settled With Atteaux.

Concerning the check for $2,100, W. H. Dwelly, secretary and treasurer of the American Woolen Company, testified as follows:

Q—Where did you get this check?
A—I wrote that.
Q—Who told you to?
A—Mr. Wood called me into his office.
Q—What did he say?
A—He said, "I have settled with Mr. Atteaux."
Q—Was Mr. Atteaux there?
A—No.
Q—And you then wrote the check?
A—Yes.

Dwelly was asked several questions as to the organization of the American Woolen Company. He said it is capitalized for $60,000,000.

Another surprise in his testimony came when he declared that no employe or officer of the company was required to give an itemized account of expenditures. He said:

"If a man was going to New York, or to Europe, and asked for $50 or $500, or $5,000, I would give it to him without requiring any itemized account. If Atteaux was engaged in special services

BRITISH KING IN BERLIN MAKES PEACE PLEA

BERLIN, May 23.—"The preservation of peace is my fervent desire as it was the chief aim and object of my father's life."

These words fell today from the lips of King George of England in replying to an address presented to him by British residents of Berlin gathered at the English embassy. Coming after a long period of jingo talk relative to possible war between England and Germany the expression made a sensation.

Berlin today wore a gala appearance not equaled in decades, with the appearance of so many great ruling monarchs here to attend the wedding tomorrow of Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the Kaiser, to Prince Ernst August of Cumberland. In addition to the presence of Emperor William, Czar Nicholas of Russia, and King George of England, lesser luminaries are here.

King George and Queen Mary were guests at a luncheon at the British embassy while Czar Nicholas was the guest of honor at a similar function at the Russian embassy. Among those present at the English embassy were Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and John A. G. Leishman, U. S. Ambassador to Germany.

Extensive preparations have been taken for the safety of the royal personages, the Prussian police being assisted by large bodies of Russian and British detectives, while the soldiers at the stations and lining the routes of the royal processions carry loaded rifles.

King George and Emperor Nicholas are so remarkably alike in appearance that it was difficult even for those familiar with both monarchs to identify them, except by the uniforms they wore. Both were dressed as Prussian officers of the respective regiments of which they are honorary colonels.

Urges Open Discussion.

"A treaty," he said, "cannot compel any department of the government to do what the constitution forbids it to do."

Sisson pleaded for less secrecy in the making of treaties. He declared that treaties should be considered in the open session of the Senate and the vote of each Senator should be made a public record. He declared allowing the importation of great hordes of cheap alien labor would surely lead to great corporation control of land.

"What would become of the farmer if the great corporations of the country should enter the land market and buy all of the best lands of the country and then cultivate them with Mongolian or other cheap alien labor? How long will the American farmer be able to compete with great land monopolies in producing what our lands are adapted to? The great land corporation would establish its commissary and compel its horde of aliens to purchase everything which they consume from it and would be enabled to make enormous profits out of the land and drive the American farmer out of existence."

DOCTORS' BULLETIN TELLS INCREASE OF MIKADO'S FEVER

TOKIO, May 23.—It is reported tonight that Emperor Yoshihito is suffering from pleuro-pneumonia. His fever is increasing.

A military guard has been ordered placed about the palace. Shinto priests have left the shrine of Fuji Yama to offer sacrifices for the recovery of the Mikado.

All the theatres have been ordered closed. Among the others at the palace to express sympathy for the family of the sick man was Arthur Bailey Blanchard, charge d'affaires of the United States embassy.

"The illness of the Emperor has been diagnosed as pneumonia. His fever has increased within the past twenty-four hours. Yesterday the temperature was 101; last night it was 102; this afternoon at 4 o'clock it was 103."

ARREST BACK BAY MODISTE AS SMUGGLER

Mrs. Mary A. Dolan, the fashionable Back Bay dressmaker doing business as "Mme. Driscoll, Inc.," at No. 715 Boylston street, was arrested in the United States District Court room in the Federal Building this noon after she had surrendered herself at the United States District Attorney's office in answer to a secret federal indictment charging her with smuggling in goods aggregating $100,000 in value.

Just before "Mme. Driscoll" surrendered Mr. and Mrs. Terence L. Shevlin of Somerville, already under smuggling indictment, were re-arrested and brought to court on new secret indictments charging them with aiding "Mme. Driscoll" alleged smuggling.

"Driscoll," as she is known among Back Bayers and parents, was held for trial in $10,000 bail, which was immediately furnished. She had been a voluntary witness at the former Grand Jury investigation, waiving immunity.

Despite protest of counsel, Judge Morton granted the demand of United States District Attorney French for $2,500 bail for Shevlin and $2,000 for his wife, Mrs. Anna W. Shevlin. The former is already out on $3,000 bail and his wife on $2,000. The additional amount will require them to furnish a total of $7,500 bail each.

They were unable to furnish the new amounts on demand and were held in the office of United States Marshal Guy Murchie while efforts were made to secure it. If none could be found by four o'clock, office closing time, or a little later, they faced the prospect of East Cambridge jail.

Counsel argued that Shevlin's physical condition makes jail confinement dangerous for him, and it is understood that if his bail cannot be raised Judge Morton will give his case further consideration.

The arrest of the Shevlins and the surrender of "Mme. Driscoll" gave the first news of the secret indictments. These were reported by the Federal Grand Jury to Judge Morton late yesterday afternoon.

"Mme. Driscoll" was indicted in six counts, involving from $15,000 to $18,000 worth of merchandise each.

The counts run back five years—the statute of limitations. In other words, the Federal investigators went as far back as they could to dig up cases of alleged smuggling on which the law would still apply.

Shevlin, the former customs clerk, and his wife were arrested at their home, No. 1 Aldersey street, Somerville, by United States Deputy Marshal "Jimmy" Ruhl. They were brought to the office of United States Marshal Murchie on the third floor of the Federal building. A representative of the office of John P. Feeney the attorney, hurried over to act as their counsel.

MALDEN JUDGE FINES A DOZEN AUTO SPEEDERS

A dozen auto offenders were arraigned in the Malden District Court today and fined sums aggregating $110 by Judge Bruce, as follows: Eben A. Mitchell of Lynn, speeding, $10; Robert C. Burnett of Malden, driving on excluded road, $10; Samuel S. H. Sanders of Danvers, speeding, $10; Philip M. Clark of Lexington, speeding, $10; Burton B. Earl, Stoneham, speeding, $10; Edward N. Winship of Wakefield, speeding, $10; Frank Sargent of Somerville, driving on excluded road, $10; Francis B. Wilcox of Greenfield, speeding, $5; Louis L. Van Shaak of Cambridge, speeding, $5; Winthrop Smith of Newton, operating without lights, $10; Peter Kilhosley of Topsfield, no lights, $10; Nathan Schlossberg of Boston, no lights, $10.

The case of Paul Roche of Boston, accused of operating his automobile without lights, was continued until May 29.

Little Girl's Cry Halts Machinery of Legislature

The State legislative machinery was brought to a halt for several minutes today by a four-year-old girl.

While the House of Representatives was wrapped up in a lively debate on a bill to appropriate $5,000,000 for the development of the rivers and harbors of the Commonwealth today, the cry "Oo, papa," suddenly rang out in clear, childish tones from the Speaker's gallery. Immediately the debate was halted and the members stared up into the gallery.

Speaker Cushing dispatched a messenger to the gallery and then the House proceeded to business.

The little girl who cried out was Lois Taft Perry, four-year-old daughter of Representative James R. Perry of Northbridge, and a distant cousin of ex-President Taft.

Abbott's Peace Idea Like Cubist Picture, Says Poet Noyes

Lyman Abbott was roundly criticised for his militant utterances at Mohonk Lake by Alfred Noyes, the English peace lender, who likened the editor to the cubist picture, "Nude Descending the Stairs," at the dinner of the Massachusetts Peace Society, in Pierce's Hall.

"You look at him and see a sort of new Napoleon descending the stairs," he said. "Abbott got into Alice in Wonderland by mistake and was discussing matters with the dormouse and the mad hatter."

Mrs. John L. Gardner attended the dinner.

$15,000 FIRE IN WOODLAND PARK HOTEL

Two hundred men and women guests, many of them society people of Boston and Brookline, had to flee to safety, and three women guests were rescued and taken down fire escapes today, during a two-alarm fire which partially destroyed the Woodland Park Hotel in Auburndale. Dartmouth and Amherst college athletes helped the police rescue the three women guests. The damage was $15,000.

Those rescued were Mrs. W. A. Taft of Arlington, who fainted and was carried out by several college students; Miss B. Bennett of Newton and Miss E. B. Atkinson of Newbury. Vt. Miss Bennett and Miss Atkinson were carried to the street by Policemen Tasse and Hartwell of Newton.

Many of the guests lost all their valuables and personal belongings. In the number were scores of society men and women, including Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dimond, all of whom were about to leave the hotel for the Brookline horse show.

Other guests were thirty-three Dartmouth students and fifteen from Amherst College, who are participating in the preliminaries today for the big intercollegiate track meet finals at the Stadium tomorrow.

The fire started in the kitchen where Martin Petersen, the chef, was frying doughnuts. Petersen left the room for a moment and when he returned the fat in his pan had boiled over and the room was in flames.

The cry of "fire, fire," was taken up by bellboys, who ran through the second and third floors shouting to the guests. The college men also helped give the alarm. The flame made rapid headway and destroyed twenty rooms in the centre of the building.

KEEP EDESON'S HURT FROM WIFE; IS VERY ILL

Brookline Girl, Who Married Noted Actor, in Serious Condition from Worry Over Little Daughter.

Mrs. Robert Edeson, formerly Miss Georgie Eliot Porter of Brookline, is critically ill in a hospital at Southampton, L. I., with neurasthenia, resulting from worry during the illness of her three-year-old daughter, Roberta Edeson, last Winter.

Meanwhile Mr. Edeson, the actor and matinee idol, is in a hospital in Los Angeles, recovering from a fall on the stage at Wednesday night's performance. Dispatches from Los Angeles today said that Mr. Edeson has given orders that the news of his own illness be kept from Mrs. Edeson as the East. He receives daily bulletins of her condition, but she supposes he is as well as usual.

Ill Through Devotion.

Recently Mrs. Edeson was removed from the villa to the hospital at Southampton. Every day to the hospital goes little Roberta, whose illness last Winter caused the strain which brought on the mother's present illness. The mother's devotion to the sick girl is now equal with interest by Roberta's childish love and care.

Last Winter it was discovered that Roberta's leg bones were frail. Surgeons found it necessary to break into the bones to straighten them. The operation was successful and when the child reached home Mrs. Edeson collapsed.

Wife a Brookline Girl.

Mrs. Edeson before her marriage to the actor in July, 1908, was Miss Georgie Eliot Porter, daughter of Linn Boyd Porter, author and globe trotter, of Brookline. They met under romantic circumstances.

About a year before their marriage Mr. Edeson was appearing at a benefit given in Boston for charitable purposes. Miss Porter had been assigned to the violet booth, because she carried the nickname "Violet." Since girls were the principal attendants at the benefit the business of selling flowers was poor. Mr. Edeson, who happened to be passing, saw the dejected look on the flower girl's face and gallantly said:

"I will assist you."

He jumped upon a chair and in a few minutes had sold the stock of violets. Then he requested Miss Porter to join his box party. Thereafter he called upon her frequently at her home. Their honeymoon was spent in the mountains of New England, after which they made their home on Long Island. But whenever Mr. Edeson left for a road engagement his devoted wife was with him if her health permitted.

CURTIS LOST $4,000 TO THIEF, ON HONEYMOON

Friends of Francis Gardner Curtis of Marlboro street, associate curator of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, who was reported to have been robbed of $20,000 in cable dispatches from Italy, declared today their belief that the well-known art connoisseur had been robbed of a letter of credit for 20,000 francs ($4,000) instead of the larger sum mentioned in the dispatches. Mr. Curtis is traveling in Italy on his honeymoon. His bride was Miss Mary Barnard of Boston.

According to his friends, the letter of credit was one which Mr. Curtis obtained at a Boston exchange in April before sailing for Europe. They declared that it was improbable that he was carrying $20,000 around with him except possibly in the form of letters of credit.

Mr. Curtis told the police of Parma, Italy, that he suspected a chance acquaintance on the train of the theft of his money. This chance acquaintance was a well-dressed man who is believed to have been a swindler of international reputation.

Mr. Curtis and his bride, who was the daughter of the late James M. Barnard of Boston, had left Florence early in the morning. Somewhere on the way Mr. Curtis went into another compartment of the train. Here he met his fellow traveler whom he suspected of stealing his money. Mr. Curtis on his return collects art works which he gives to the Boston Art Museum. He does this work for the pure love of art and does not receive a salary of any kind.

Bryce Farewell Tells of His Love for United States

WASHINGTON, May 23.—James Bryce, formerly Ambassador of Great Britain, just before leaving American soil, sent back from San Francisco a letter of appreciation and affection to the American people. The letter, made public today, was in reply to one from residents of Washington, expressing their regret at his leaving. It referred to his well known interest in the plans for the beautification of the National capital.

"I am glad to think that an Englishman who loves the United States and its people," the former envoy wrote, "is not debarred by an official position from taking in all your projects for the artistic development of the national capital as interest as keen as any that your own citizens could take."

Among the signers of the letter of regret and farewell to the Ambassador were Admiral Dewey, Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army; Gifford Pinchot, formerly chief forester; Thomas Nelson Page and more than a score of others prominent in local and official circles.

END LIVER TROUBLE WITHOUT CALOMEL

Untrustworthy Drug, Thought to Loosen the Teeth, Now Made Absolutely Unnecessary.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—the mildest but surest laxative known, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. Dr. Edwards has been calomel's most uncompromising foe. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-oil-colored tablets, a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil. These pleasant, harmless little tablets do all the good that calomel does, but have no bad after-effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel at all, but to let Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a distorted liver. Take Olive Tablets when you feel "logey" and "heavy." Note how they "clean" the clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits.

Cigarettes and Trout Line Save Doctor in Mire

STOCKBRIDGE, May 23.—A fine silk trout line and a good big package of cigarettes were the best friends Dr. Charles McBurney, the eminent New York surgeon, had, when he found himself mired in the Konkapot swamp near here.

He was up to his knees in muck. But his rod and line were in his hand. He made a careful cast, hooked a tree, fifty odd feet away, and with the strong little line to steady him, made his way to an old log at the edge of the slough. It was dark then, and he started to shiver in the gloom. But he found his cigarettes were dry, and these kept him company till a company of Boy Scouts, headed by Walter B. Eaton, located him and helped him back to firm ground.

DORCHESTER BOY BANDIT IS THRASHED

Moving picture "thrillers" were said to-day to be partly responsible for the Wild West ideas of Charles J. Riley of Dorchester, who held up the Mechanics Falls stage at Auburn, Me., in company with Frank Hodges of Lewiston. The boys were armed and masked.

Companions of young Riley in Dorchester said that he was devoted to the "movies" and was especially partial to "hold-up" pictures and similar sensational subjects.

Boy Bandit Thrashed.

He was arraigned in Auburn District Court today with young Hodges for the stage hold-up. The latter was planned with all the trimmings that are supposed to go with a regulation "job" if this kind. Each lad wore a black mask and carried a heavy revolver.

The outcome was not according to the hold-up regulations, however. The boys went out to Haskell's Corner, Auburn. After tampering with the trolley switches they waited for the stage running between Mechanics Falls and Auburn. The stage carried Edward Hackett and Perley Farnce.

Suddenly Riley popped out from behind a stone wall, levelled a revolver and yelled: "Throw up your hands!"

Hackett sprang from the stage, wrenched the revolver from the boy and gave him a sound thrashing. Young Hodges, meanwhile, was standing by, too scared to move.

Left Boys at Roadside.

Hackett jumped back into the stage and the boys were left by the roadside. But the crew of the trolley car which came along a moment later chased the boys and brought them to Auburn. They were held by the police for today's court in Auburn.

Riley ran away to Vermont a year ago, but returned home. A few weeks ago he disappeared again, but wrote his mother that he had secured work on the Hodges farm near Auburn. Frank Hodges of Auburn, his youthful "pal" in the hold-up, is supposed to be living where Riley has been working.

Mrs. Riley says there is no real harm in her boy and that he could get along splendidly if he would settle down to serious work.

ABSCONDER'S DEATH ENDS WIFE'S EXILE

News of the death in Valparaiso, Chile, of Frederick T. Moore, former assistant receiving teller of the National Bank of Commerce, who absconded fourteen years ago with $53,000, brings to a close one of the most remarkable criminal cases on record—one in which romance, a wife's devotion and a vain pursuit of thousands of miles figure prominent.

Friends of Mrs. Moore, who was Miss Mamie Osmond of Boston, said today she would return to this city after her self-imposed exile and would probably bring Moore's body for burial here.

Moore's father lives in Waltham and it was he who received the cablegram announcing the former bank man's death on Monday after a long illness from lung trouble.

Mrs. Moore was seriously ill for a time after joining her husband, as the climate did not agree with her. She finally rallied, however, and with Moore had planned to return and fight for vindication.

Mrs. Moore became one of the belles of the Chilian metropolis. The English-speaking residents regarded her as a heroine, to whose devotion, coupled with Attorney H. N. Allin's legal acumen, Moore owed his liberty there. She wrote recently to friends in Boston:

If I had my old friends here I would be quite content. But if I must choose between Fred and home, of course I stay with my dear husband.

We are working hard in our photograph gallery, looking forward to the day when we shall return to America, with Fred's good name restored and to do battle for justice and vindication.

There is a chapter yet to be written in our story. There are revelations to be made that may astound those who were too quick to accuse Fred of taking that Boston bank's money. Some time, it may be years hereafter, the sequel to the exile of Fred Moore will be written; and it shall not be said therein but his wife deserted him.

We're in direct touch with the men of Boston and New England. We know their needs and their preferences. 61 years of continuous manufacturing and selling Morse-Made Clothes, with the intimate personal contact with the men who wear them, are back of the garments we are producing today.

CASSIDY IN WARNING TO PEOPLE TELLS HOW CHICKENS ARE 'STUFFED'

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

There is a strike of poultry dealers in New York to prevent the jobbers from robbing the public of $2,000,000 a year by feeding sand and gravel to chickens to increase their weight.

You want to watch it and find out how much of this chicken stuffing is done right here in Boston.

I wonder if our friends, Alton E. Briggs and Alfred P. Lee, secretary and president, respectively, of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, would deny this is done in Boston?

Here's the way this dodge is worked on the public:

Every car of live poultry coming from the West to Boston is accompanied by a man whose business is to see that the poultry does not shrink in transit. If careful feeding with meal loaded with sand can stop this shrinkage the poor chicken hasn't a chance.

For every car arriving without shrinkage the caretaker is given $5 by the shipper. If it is 500 pounds over weight he gets $10, and if 1,000 pounds, $15. Some of the cars have been known to run over weight as high as 1,750 pounds.

"The day the chickens are to be sent to market," said one dealer to me yesterday, "the caretakers feed them a supper of iron meal and red pepper. That, of course, makes them hungry and thirsty. Then they are given a feast of bread and meal mixed with gravel and sand.

"Each chicken gets about a quarter of a pound of additional weight. When you figure there are 4,000 birds to a car, you can easily see what a big money-making proposition for the jobber the feeding-up process is."

Buy Sand and Gravel.

How does this affect the buyer for the household? Simply that when you buy a chicken and pay top notch prices for it, you are buying some common gravel and sand. Next time you buy a chicken, look at the crop. You'll find it loaded down with gravel and sand.

The dealers in New York who have to sell these at retail to the trade are stopping this practice. They have boycotted the jobbers.

"We aren't buying sand," and "Give us an honest deal," the striking dealers made their slogan.

Twenty carloads of live chickens, 4,000 to the car, were held in the Jersey City yards because the dealers refused to buy loaded crop chickens.

With the coming of the Summer season and the desire for fresh vegetables, you should be very careful of typhoid fever germs in vegetables grown with night soil. In Pennsylvania Governor Tener recently signed a bill prohibiting the use of this kind of fertilizer on vegetables that are eaten raw.

The officers of the Philadelphia Navy Yard had made so many complaints of typhoid fever epidemics the Secretary of the Navy announced no further improvements would be made in the yard until the State improved conditions.

The Department of Health and Charities in Philadelphia, aroused by the danger of typhoid infection, issued a bulletin warning the public against the source of this disease. It said:

"Typhoid fever and other serious diseases can be spread through uncleaned vegetables, the germs of the disease being taken into the body by eating lettuce, celery, radishes and other vegetables which are eaten raw, which have been contaminated.

"Vegetables grown in soil fertilized with typhoid fever material have been found to have typhoid fever germs upon the leaves and stems THIRTY-ONE DAYS AFTER THE SOIL WAS FERTILIZED."

YOU WORKING GIRLS WHO GO UP IN THE COUNTRY FOR A REST AND VACATION FOR YOUR TIRED BODY, WATCH OUT WHERE THE FRESH VEGETABLES COME FROM.

Incidentally the Massachusetts State Board of Health might see that such a condition about here is changed.

CROXONE SOON RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After a Few Doses Are Taken

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that come from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon, no matter what else may have failed to cure you.

It is a positive fact that the new discovery, Croxone, promptly overcomes such diseases. It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for ridding the system of uric acid.

It works right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them filter and sift out all the poisonous waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate, long standing cases.

You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. An original package costs but a trifle. All druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time.

URGES SEIZURE TO KILL SUGAR TRUST

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Seizure by the government of billions of pounds of imported sugar to compel the actual dissolution of the Sugar Trust is advocated by Senator Norris as an effective means of saving the American people from extortion if the trust should attempt to raise the price of sugar after the tariff on sugar has been eliminated. Senator Norris believes that free sugar will result eventually in producing a market situation entirely controlled by the trust.

MORE CHILDREN SAVED, BUT ADULTS DYING YOUNGER

NEW YORK, May 23.—We're saving more children these days than twenty years ago. Fewer babies die. But the fathers and mothers, the adults, are dying younger than ever before. This is the strange disclosure made by tables of comparative health conditions just made public by the department of health here. The report says: "The adult of the present generation is travelling a pace too fast for his health. Rapidity of living can but end in premature dying. Never was there greater need, from a health standpoint, for the practice of moderation in all things."

ANCIENTS IN LINE AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—The principal feature of today's program of the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of the infantry corps, State Fencibles, was the pageant which took place this afternoon. In the line of parade were the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, the oldest military organization in the country; the New Haven Grays of Connecticut, the Duquesne Grays of Pittsburgh, the Gate City Guard of Atlanta, Ga., and the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford. Of the 700 members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery only thirty-five are in this city to attend the celebration.

GIBSON TRIAL HALTED TO SEND MAN TO DEATH

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 23.—The opening of the second trial of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer charged with the murder of Countess Rosa Menschik Szabo in order to secure her estate, was held up today while Justice Tompkin passed sentence of death upon Dominick Gerdvine, a murderer. Gibson was in the courtroom when the sentence was imposed, but showed no emotion. The sheriff, in order to warn Gibson before hand, had told him that a prisoner was to be sentenced to death.

"What is that to me?" asked the accused attorney. "I am a lawyer and believe the law should be upheld. I believe in capital punishment. Any man who commits murder owes his life to the State. I am a firm believer in the jury system. It's mighty hard to convince twelve men that a man is guilty unless he is really guilty. I am glad that my trial has this introduction."

Gibson was formally called after Gerdvine was sentenced.

Gibson is accused of drowning Countess Szabo in Greenwood Lake on July 16 last. Mrs. Gibson, dressed in black and wearing a big black picture hat, sat opposite her husband at the counsel table and frequently whispered words of cheer across to him.

The first juror chosen was William Wilkin, a farmer. He will act as foreman. Other jurors chosen were: W. D. Canfield and E. T. Hull, both farmers.

WOMEN STOLEN BY MOORISH BANDITS

ORAN, Algeria, May 23.—Word was received here today from the interior that Moorish bandits attacked a mail van en route to Taburiri, abducting two European women passengers. The driver of the van was killed and a passenger was seriously wounded.

MARTIAL LAW IN SPANISH PROVINCE

MADRID, May 23.—Part of the province of Huelva was put under martial law today as a result of serious rioting among the striking employes of the famous Rio Tinto copper mines. A number of persons have been injured and much damage done to property.

MISS CORA CARPENTER DEAN of Providence, who is to wed George Somer Bishop of Westwood.

A romance of childhood's vacation days came to light today with the announcement of the engagement of George Somer Bishop of Westwood to Miss Cora Carpenter Dean, a wealthy heiress of Providence, and granddaughter of the late Mayor Charles Sidney Smith of that city. The couple first met eleven years ago when both were children enjoying the school vacation days at Buttonwoods, a fashionable Rhode Island Summer colony.

The wedding will take place June 11 in Grace Episcopal Church in Providence.

Misses Bertha H. Lang and Marguerite D. Peck, girlhood chums of the bride-to-be, will be her bridesmaids. Agnes Bush will be the flower girl. Miss Alice B. Cobb will be the maid of honor. Robert R. Bishop, brother of the groom-to-be, will be the best man. The ushers will be Earl R. Molenhey of Providence, Arthur Ackley of Hackettstown, N. J., Russell Partridge of Dedham and Ora Hardy of Lowell.

Miss Dean is a graduate of the Moses Brown school of Providence in the class of 1909. After their honeymoon the couple will live in Dedham.

GREEKS AND BULGARS IN BIG BATTLE

LONDON, May 23.—Dispatches from Athens say that terrific fighting is going on between Bulgarian and Greek troops in southern Albania. A heavy force of Bulgarians, supported by artillery, crossed the neutral zone established when the armistice with Turkey was signed. The Bulgars refused to withdraw and fighting began.

King Constantine of Greece left hurriedly and unexpectedly for Salonika this afternoon. It was rumored that he would take the field in person at the head of his army.

The Greek government has protested to Servia and is threatening to precipitate general hostilities against Bulgaria unless the Bulgar soldiers are withdrawn.

Dispatches from Constantinople state that revolution has broken out. Serious fighting is going on the vilayet of Basra, in Asiatic Turkey, between Saadun tribesmen and loyal Turkish troops on one hand and a group of rebellious tribesmen.

PROUTY TO CONFER WITH NEW ENGLAND BOARD TOMORROW

Arrangements have been made for a meeting tomorrow between Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty, who conducted the recent investigation of New England lines, and the conferees appointed last January by the New England Governors to study and report on the New England transportation situation.

Tomorrow's meeting, which will be the second to be held since the conference organized, will be called at 10 a. m. in the executive offices at the State House. It is understood that conditions relative to Boston & Maine Railroad will be the chief topic for discussion, and it is therefore likely that the four conferees from Connecticut and Rhode Island may not be present.

HEAD AND FACE FULL OF PIMPLES

Just Like Little Boils. Scratched Until They Bled, Face Disfigured, Itched and Burned. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Well as Ever.

B. F. D. No. 3, Alburgh, Vt.—"One morning I got up with my head and face full of pimples. They looked just like little boils. The itching was so intense that I scratched them until they bled and then they formed a scab and kept bleeding. The scabs were so bad that I had to have my hair clipped. My face was disfigured so that I was ashamed to go out, and oh! how it itched and burned. I hardly got any sleep for almost a year.

"I used all kinds of salves and most every kind of medicine that anyone would prescribe to me, but without relief. Finally one day a lady said to me, 'Why don't you try Cuticura Soap and Ointment?' At once I tried them; I began to wash the sores twice a day with the Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment on the sores and in just about two months there were no signs of scabs or no scars on my face or head, and my hair grew just lovely. I was as well as ever." (Signed) Mrs. Henry Lapierre, Nov. 1, 1912.

Why not have a clear skin, soft white hands, a clean scalp and good hair? It is your birthright. Cuticura Soap with an occasional use of Cuticura Ointment will bring about these coveted conditions in most cases when all else fails. Sold everywhere. Sample of each free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Dr. Worcester Lauds Plan for Eugenic Unions

The decision of the Rev. C. Thurston Chase of Lynn to marry only those couples presenting health certificates is a move in the right direction, according to the Rev. Dr. Elwood R. Worcester, rector of Emmanuel Church, but it can be made official, he says, only by the co-operation of civil authorities. Dr. Worcester said:

The time has come when I believe that marriage ought to be performed by the State and that the State ought to go as far as foreign countries have gone in requiring marriages to be performed by some civil authority. For people who are without religion it is a needless mockery to require them to go through the solemn marriage ceremony of a church.

I do not think marriage is a civil contract; it is not in the nature of a contract. For in a contract stipulations are laid down. Marriage is a voluntary union of two persons. It becomes nothing more than mockery when two persons who are not religious are compelled to go through with the solemn ceremony.

Dr. Worcester says the State should employ its own physicians. This would mean, he declares, that the marriage ceremony would be regulated by men of the highest character. Their examinations, Dr. Worcester continued, should not be confined to specific ailments, but to all diseases affecting posterity, such as tuberculosis and epilepsy.

Alcohol is a chief cause of the deterioration of the human race, Dr. Worcester says, resulting, according to experts, in mental weakness in children.

Diseases heretofore seldom openly referred to should be discussed frankly, Dr. Worcester declared. "There has been altogether too much secrecy with regard to the treatment of the sex question," he asserted.

Miss Jaquith, who was made superintendent of the Worcester Memorial Hospital when she was only twenty-five years old, is considered a remarkable woman. When first told that Governor Foss wished her to serve with the white slave investigators, she said she feared she would have to decline.

FOSS GETS MEANEY MILK LABEL BILL

The senate has sent the Meaney milk label bill to Governor Foss for his signature. The measure, which passed the House two weeks ago, provides that every milk dealer who offers or exposes for sale any milk that has been pasteurized, or milk which was produced outside the Commonwealth, shall cause each receptacle containing such milk to be labeled with the words "pasteurized milk," or "out of State milk."

The vote in the Senate was 24 in favor and 14 against. Senator Ward spoke of "surreptitious organization" to kill the bill. Representative John F. Meaney of Blackstone, author of the measure, and a consistent friend of pure food legislation, was much gratified today by the success of the bill.

The roll call was as follows.

G. O. P. OPPOSED TO HEALTH BOARD REORGANIZATION

The Republican State machine has decided to fight against the reorganization of the State Board of Health. This was evidenced today when the Republicans on the Ways and Means committee of the House reported adversely on the bill for the reorganization of the board, although it was favored by the House Committee on Public Health. Republican leaders are said to be opposed to the reorganization because it will mean that Governor Foss will be able to appoint a Democratic board. A reorganization of the board has been persistently advocated by Harry P. Cassidy, pure food expert for the AMERICAN, by State health inspectors, prominent labor union leaders and many members of the Legislature.

DORCHESTER FOLK THANK WILKINS

At the annual meeting of the Dorchester Trades Association a vote of thanks was given to Superintendent Frank I. Wilkins of the Boston Elevated Railway Company for the numerous improvements in the car service and extension of the transfer privileges which he has been instrumental in bringing about. Mr. Wilkins was appointed chairman of the transportation committee for the coming year.

The Moral Value of Etiquette and Good Form

First of a series of articles on the cultivation of careful manners written especially for this newspaper by Mrs. Frank Learned, a well-known member of New York and Newport society, and the author of "The Etiquette of New York Today."

In Sunday's AMERICAN.

Engagement Is Announced at Birthday Debut

Miss Louise Fisher Adams, the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gibson Adams of Commonwealth avenue, is the most envied of society's debutantes, for Miss Adams not only celebrated her birthday and her formal coming-out on one and the same day, but at the same time heard her parents announce her engagement to Astley Day Adams of Brookline.

The triple celebration took place at the house of the young debutante's parents. Miss Adams is a favorite in the younger society set, and is fond of athletics and outdoor life. Her parents have a Summer home at Beach Bluff on the North Shore.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Adams of Brookline, and is a Yale graduate, '12.

WINE STOLEN BY WINDOW SMASHERS

The smashing of three large plate-glass windows in stores on Hanover street today led the police to think for a time that a band of English militant suffragettes had landed in Boston. It was found that a bottle of wine was stolen from one window. The windows smashed were on the stores of S. Dwyers, W. P. B. Brooks and W. H. Jones.

FORMER SHOW MAN ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET

Thomas Lambert, forty-three years old, of No. 42 Milford street, South End, said to have been despondent over financial reverses, shot and killed himself at 7 a. m. today in his room. He was discovered at 11 a. m. by his landlady, Mrs. Josephine M. Riley. A thirty-eight caliber revolver, one chamber of which was empty, was found clutched in Lambert's hand. He shot himself in the right temple.

Lambert was a theatrical man and had been manager of the Pullman Tourist Company. He had an office at Room No. 3, No. 178A Tremont street, Boston. He had been associated in business with George Leslie, who was stage manager of the company.

Lena Jannis, a lodger, heard a shot, but thought it was a "back fire" from an automobile.

Lambert was last seen alive at 11 o'clock last night.

PLAN DEFINITE POLICY TO FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

The Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature gave a hearing today on the new bill to establish a definite policy for fighting tuberculosis in the State. Dr. Gifford, a Fall River physician, declared the efforts so far made by the State to combat consumption was like "guerilla warfare," in that it lacked concentrated effort. He declared the State is losing $20,000,000 every year through its methods of handling tuberculosis.

PENNSYLVANIA TO HAVE WIRELESS

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—It has been learned from unofficial sources that the Pennsylvania Railroad may soon establish a wireless telegraph station in Pittsburgh to connect this city with Philadelphia and other division points. Towers will be established at Altoona and Philadelphia.

JURY DISAGREES IN SALEM CASE

The jury which heard the testimony in the trial at Salem of Charles A. Eaton, accused of manslaughter, disagreed today after deliberating eight hours. Eaton was charged with causing the death by shooting of Michael Bernstein in Haverhill during a short strike there last January.

OFFICERS LOSE IN CLUBBING CASE

Eugene Mitchell, Jr., and William B. Mitchell, both Hull police officers, lose their appeal from a Superior Court verdict awarding Charles A. Eldredge of Hull $350 against each of them for a clubbing they gave him on May 8, 1911, by a decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court, handed down today.

GERMANS WANTED CHINESE LOAN

BERLIN, May 23.—The portion of the Chinese loan issued in Germany was over subscribed five times.

Mrs. Geromini Loses Appeal to Supreme Court

Elizabeth Geromini of Franklin loses in her unique legal fight for damages against Louis Brunelle on the ground that he induced her husband, Petro, to desert her and to carry her two children to Italy, by a decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court handed down today.

The Superior Court judge is sustained in refusing to instruct the jury that it was not necessary to show malice on the part of Brunelle, and in ordering a verdict for the defendant.

Judge Morton, who wrote the opinion, says this about:

"It is true the husband is bound to support his wife, and is liable to criminal complaint if he does not, but we do not think that fact can affect his right to such advice or resolve a third party liable for advice which is given with an honest and friendly desire to assist him even though it may lead to the separation from his wife, and may turn out not to have been the best advice that could have been given."

5 MILLION TO BETTER STATE WATERWAYS

By an overwhelming voice vote, the House of Representatives today passed to be engrossed a resolve providing an appropriation of $5,000,000 for the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the Commonwealth, outside of Boston. The Senate has yet to pass upon the measure.

Representative Doyle of New Bedford, a Republican, charged during the debate that certain Republican leaders of the House were opposing the bill because of the fact that the money is to be expended by a Democratic Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners.

NEGRO MEMORIAL FOR J. B. HENDERSON

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Negro leaders from many States are arriving in Washington today to pay homage to the memory of Senator John B. Henderson of Missouri, who died here recently, and who was the author of the thirteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, abolishing slavery. Cardinal Gibbons and many high government officials and members of Congress have been invited to attend the services.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

The newest thing in the Boston retail markets is the luscious watermelon, although those that are coming in at present are not notable for their lusciousness. Only one carload has arrived, coming from Florida. They sell for $70 a hundred at wholesale and from $1 to $1.25 each at retail.

California cherries are now coming in car lots and the price has dropped from 50 and 60 cents to 25 cents a pound.

Not for years have lobsters been so plentiful in the Boston market as they are this season. The Nova Scotia supply has been unusually large and the Maine coast lobster fisheries have been very successful. They sell at retail for 20 to 25 cents a pound.

Notwithstanding the fact that mackerel have been more plentiful this spring than they have for three years past at this season, the demand is so great that the prices are about the same as last year. Bloaters sell for 50 cents each and smaller fish in proportion.

Penobscot river salmon are arriving in the market and a few salmon from the same region are making their appearance.

Excellent strawberries from the Delaware and Maryland gardens are coming into the Boston market in increasing quantities. They are greatly superior to the earlier arrivals from the far South and there is a great demand for them. The prices range from 15 to 25 cents a box.

Owing to the continued cold weather the supply of asparagus has greatly diminished. There is still a quantity in the market, but the low prices of a fortnight ago have been greatly increased.

New cauliflower from Norfolk, of a much better quality than the previous receipts from Florida, is arriving in small, but increasing, quantities.

Hot-house cucumbers are selling for eight cents each. They were never so plentiful and cheap as now.

WOOD'S NAME ON RECEIPT TO ATTEAUX

for or during the strike, he would not be required to make an itemized statement.

Counsel made a hitter fight against the introduction of these exhibits. They were introduced after Edward B. Lynch, paying teller of the Federal Trust Company, had taken the stand.

Attorney Coakley, representing Attorney Atteaux, admitted Atteaux's signature on checks and receipts. Attorney Hurlburt objected on the part of Mr. Wood and the exhibits were admitted, not as affecting Mr. Wood, unless later evidence should show a connection.

Crowd in Court.

The court was more crowded today than on any previous day of the trial. This was the result of assertions that Mr. Pelletier would attempt today to connect Mr. Wood with the alleged conspiracy.

The introduction of the two checks and the receipts, followed a half hour's debate over their admissability. John J. Breen has testified that Frederick E. Atteaux paid him $700. Breen on the stand yesterday and the day before admitted planting the dynamite in Lawrence, and said he did it after a talk with Mr. Atteaux.

Edward B. Lynch was the first witness today. He is paying teller at the Federal Trust Company. His testimony was given in the midst of a complete silence in the courtroom. Every spectator was paying the closest attention.

Lynch positively identified Atteaux's signature on each of the two checks.

The next witness was William H. Dwelly, Jr., secretary treasurer of the American Woolen Company. He testified that he had been treasurer eight and secretary for four years.

District Attorney Pelletier: Who is president of the American Woolen Company? A—William M. Wood.

Q—How long has he been president? A—Six or seven years.

Q—This signature on this receipt; whose handwriting is that? A—Mr. Wood's.

Pay Bills by Check.

Q—The signature on this other receipt? A—Mr. Wood signed that also.

Q—How does the American Woolen Company pay out money—what method is used? A—We pay by check.

Q—How do you know when to sign a check? A—When instructed to do so by an officer of the company.

Q—For any amount or for any purpose? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Where did you get that authority? A—Through our by-laws.

Q—Do you always have a voucher for each payment? A—Yes, sir, always.

Q—Are these vouchers always signed by the president? A—Yes, sir, or by some other duly accredited official.

Q—Have you the books of the American Woolen Company, showing the payment made by President Wood on account of the Lawrence strike? A—Yes sir, my cash book. (The books were then produced.)

Q—Can you show me the records of all payments made to Mr. Atteaux on account of the Lawrence strike—that is, outside payments made for merchandise?

The witness turned to the cash books and showed entries of the payments made to Atteaux on March 22 of $505 and $2,100 on June 26.

Grouped Small Items.

Questioned by Mr. Pelletier—Why were these charged under the heading General Office Expenditures? A—Well, the items were so small I thought it best to put them there.

Q—Were all the strike expenses included under this head? A—Yes, sir.

Q—How was that expense proportioned out? A—Among the thirty-seven mills of the company.

Q—What is the capitalization of this American Woolen Company? A—Sixty million dollars.

Q—How many persons are employed by the American Woolen Company? A—I don't know.

Q—How many were out on strike? A—I don't know.

Q—Where are the stubs from which checks were taken? A—We don't keep stubs.

Q—What do you keep then? A—We have the checks printed. There are five checks to a sheet.

Q—Then you didn't keep any check book at all? A—Very seldom. We prefer the loose sheets.

Wrote It on Wood's Order.

Q—Were checks audited before they were issued? A—No, not until after.

Q—I see on these the initials "C. E. C." What do they stand for? A—C. E. Cate, our auditor.

Q—Is there any way to tell when he audited these checks? A—No.

Q—Where did you get this one? (Handing the witness the check for $2,100.) A—I wrote that.

Q—Who told you to? A—Mr. Wood called me into his office.

Q—What did he say? A—He said, "I have settled with Mr. Atteaux."

Q—Was Mr. Atteaux there? A—No.

Q—And you then wrote the check? A—Yes.

Q—What was done then? It was entered in teh cash book and filed.

Q—That transaction was closed by Atteaux, Wood and you? A—Yes.

Q—How about this other check? A—I didn't pay that.

Q—Were you there at the time? A—No. I went out of the office for a little while.

Q—Mr. Currier makes out checks too, doesn't he? A—Yes.

Q—When did you hear about this $505 check? A—I think Mr. Wood mentioned it to me at the end of the day or on the following morning. He said he had been paying off the attorney.

Q—Did you get the voucher? A—No.

Q—Who is custodian of the vouchers and checks? A—Mr. Currier.

Q—Did you see it next day? A—I probably saw it before I left the office.

Q—As I understand your testimony you said that the check for $505 was credited to the general account. A—Yes.

Q—How was the $2,100 check credited? A—To the general account.

Q—How was it apportioned among the mills? A—I don't know.

Strike Wasn't Mentioned.

Q—How can we find out? A—The custom is to make a charge against the general account and let it rest there. The item will appear on the general ledger and will show that it went to the general expenses of the company.

Q—Will the ledger show whether this $2,100 was divided up under the general account or the strike account? A—No.

Q—Was anything said about the strike account in connection with the payment of this check? A—No.

Q—Does it not state here "strike accounts?" A—Well, of course, strike expenses are in the general account totals.

Q—This penciled memoranda on this check—why was it placed there? A—If my memory serves me correctly, that was done after the time of the indictments being considered.

Q—That was in August, when the present indictments were pending, was it not? Was that the reason? A—I didn't do it on that account.

Q—Did you do it by advice of counsel? A—No, sir.

Q—But you did it while these indictments were pending? A—Well, it was about that time.

Q—Have you consulted with counsel about this case. A—I saw Mr Hurlburt at his office this morning.

Q—Immediately before coming into court. A—Yes, sir.

Q—Have you had any other transactions similar to this, of which record is made. A—Yes, it was not at all uncommon.

Q—How many such bills did you have to meet during the strike? By that I mean—bills for which no itemized account was rendered? A—Well all three of our lawyers' bills were settled in the same way.

Q—Were these lawyers' bill itemized? A—No, we took their receipts in full for services rendered.

Q—Did you pay out any other money during the strike or afterward without an itemized account? A—I had frequent payments to make of that character.

Q—Did you ever pay Mr. Atteaux for merchandise without receiving an itemized account from him? A—No, sir.

Q—But I understand you are accustomed to giving money to an officer or to any employe of the company for expenses without an account being rendered by him. A—Yes, sir.

Q—Don't you know what that money is spent for? A—I suppose they spend it for expenses.

Nothing to Politicians.

Q—But have you no means of knowing what the items of their expenses are? A—No, sir. I trust to their honesty.

Q—What do you do with the politicians? A—We don't give anything to the politicians.

Q—What bills are paid by the American Woolen Company without itemized accounts. A—Why? to an officer of the company were going to New York, or to Europe, and told me he wanted the money, I'd give him a check for $50, $500 or even $5,000 if he told me he needed it for expenses.

PELLETIER--A MAN ON THE JOB

Matches Wits with the Best Criminal Lawyers in the State

CENTRAL FIGURE IN WOOD TRIAL

The spectators in court forget that the greatest wool unquate in the country is on trial. They remember only that a public-spirited District Attorney is matched in a battle of wits with the finest criminal lawyers in the State.

District Attorney Pelletier has an assistant—Mr. Webber. But District Attorney Pelletier is opposed by Samuel L. Powers, Henry F. Hurlburt, Daniel H. Coakley and Daniel H. Sughrue. Take any one of these four attorneys, and you will find many ready to name him "finest criminal lawyer in the State." Certainly these four are among the first half-dozen in their profession.

The trial is interspersed by skirmishes between these experts and Mr. Pelletier. Their wordy tilts catch and hold the spectators' flagging attention at some rare, dull spot in the testimony. John J. Breen, testifying, said he told Atteaux that he would "flip off" his friend Rooney about the dynamite plant. Instantly a defence attorney demanded, with a smile:

"Was that a waiter's flip?"

District Attorney Pelletier answered: "No, sir—that was a stockholder's flip." The jitter in the court testified that the benches thought the District Attorney had scored. Witness Breen then had a chance to recover his composure, and to feel the strength of the attorney supporting him.

District Attorney Pelletier is a big man, and a quiet man—till you get him started. Then his voice fills the court room and startles the pigeons on the window ledges outside—and the jury pays attention.

Breen was testifying. The District Attorney got interested and his voice rose. Attorney Coakley spoke up:

"You oughtn't to talk to loud, Mr. District Attorney. You'll frighten the witness. You even frighten me."

District Attorney Pelletier rapped back:

"You needn't be frightened—but you may be worried, sir."

Mr. Pelletier wears a dark gray business suit—no dark. It is almost black. His hair is short and stubby. His moustache looks gritty. His eyes flash from one expression to another as the testimony proceeds.

He is A MAN ON THE JOB.

DR. ELIOT BLAMES MAN, NOT WOMAN, FOR SOCIAL EVIL

NEW YORK, May 23.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot declared man—not woman—is to blame for the social evil, and announced the "double standard of morality" in a tribute to Dr. Prince A. Morrow, at a meeting in the Academy of Medicine here. Dr. Eliot said:

"The practice of society today is as it has even been—to pursue and persecute the woman and to let the man go free. This is fundamentally and dreadfully wrong. There should not be a double standard of morality. It is the man who is the source of the social evil, not the woman."

COOK'S Imperial Extra Dry Champagne

Purest of the pure, bubbling over with life, fragrant of the essence of the grape, rich with delicious age, mellow with age.

Its price is less than for ordinary champagnes, but the same liberality in quality and age which has given Cook's imperial Extra Dry its world-wide fame and prestige has made Cook's the largest selling champagne in the world.

The Reign of the Club Check

True to the prediction which we made last fall when we announced the first showing in Boston of the new Club Check Suits, this strikingly beautiful pattern is now at the height of popularity, and for the first time in years the prestige of the Blue Serge as a summer suit is seriously threatened.

This Live Store enjoys a well earned reputation for timely offerings—for being always ready with just what's wanted at just the time it's wanted.

Therefore, as might be expected, we are undoubtedly showing the largest stock and the widest variety of Club Checks to be found in New England.

That our values are considerably better than can be obtained elsewhere is a fact which has been frequently and conclusively demonstrated.

This offering of Club Check Suits not only furnishes further proof of our greater value-giving, but serves to still more firmly establish us pace-makers in sytle.

N. SALLINGER, THE FIRST

And Only Man in Boston to Sell Standard Brands of Men's Clothing on Credit

N. SALLINGER, Proprietor Peoples Credit Co.
Originator of the Famous Order Check which enables men and women to obtain Credit at their favorite stores for the Cash Bargain Prices, and PAY $1.00 A WEEK.

IN no place in the world does a man have the opportunity to dress as well on credit as he has in Boston—There is no other credit concern in Boston selling the Standard Brands of Clothing on credit—Mr. Sallinger is the credit agent in Boston for the biggest and best clothing manufacturers in America; men's fine clothing that is advertised in the big magazines and big newspapers of this country. The manufacturers of these standard brands of high grade men's clothing spend hundreds of thousands of dollars every year designing, making and advertising their clothing, proving its value and desirability and establishing a material and artistic standard.

Mr. Sallinger recognized the fact that he could not build up his credit business among men unless he placed it upon a high and dignified plane; giving the men of Greater Boston the best clothing at the regular cash price, not charging one cent more for it than is charged by the big cash stores. The success of Mr. Sallinger's Men's Clothing Department is wonderful—there are not six cash clothing stores in Boston that equal Mr. Sallinger's Credit Men's Clothing Department in volume of business. Whether you buy directly from him or use his Order Check to purchase elsewhere on credit, Mr. Sallinger strongly advises buying only standard brands of men's clothing, which means brands made by the best known makers in the country—brands of standard value that can be depended upon to give absolute satisfaction in material, workmanship and style—brands that have been standardized because of their uniform, dependable character and values.

High Art Clothes (Standard Brand)—Strouse & Bros. of Baltimore, Md.; clothes of quality, suitable for the conservative dresser.

Character Clothes (Standard Brand) of New York city; the highest grade strictly union-made garment.

Lincoln Brand (Standard Brand) of Boston; the very best medium-priced clothes made.

The Richard System Clothes (Standard Brand) of New York city; the highest class ready-for-service garments in America.

Griffon Clothes (Standard Brand) of Baltimore; "Faddy" clothes for young men.

Adler's Clothes (Standard Brand) of Milwaukee, the famous "Collegian" brand; clothes of a national reputation—extremely smart.

National Student Clothes (Standard Brand) of New York city; style, quality and make are all combined in this brand; specially adapted for the youth.

R. B. Fashion Clothes (Standard Brand) of Rochester, N. Y.; the "snappiest" clothes in America for the clever dresser.

Frankel System Clothes (Standard Brand) of New York city; including the famous Frankel $15.00 Suit, the best suit made for this price in America.

We are the Exclusive Credit Agents for the above high-class Standard Brands and also other leading well advertised Standard Brands (names of which we cannot mention for business reasons) may be secured on credit through the Peoples Credit Co. for . . . . . $1.00 A WEEK

I agree with the manufacturers not to charge one cent more for these brands than is charged by the cash stores.

PART I.

"NOT a chance," he declared, proudly, "with that over his mug." To avoid possible interruption of his movements in an emergency, he removed the chair Garson had placed and set it to one side, out of the way.

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this, I'm through with you. I quit."

Garson was undismayed by the threat.

"If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

He turned to the work in hand with increased energy.

"Come on, Griggs and Red, and push that desk down a bit so that I can stand on it." The two men bent to the task, heedless of Mary's frantic protest.

"No! no! no! no, Joe!"

Red, however, suddenly straightened from the desk and stood motionless, listening. He made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in wordless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "And it's coming this way."

At the words, Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

THERE was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought the pall of darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open, there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilder. In the next instant he had stepped within the room and pulled to the door behind him. And in that same instant Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the brave hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. Even as his powerful arm held the newcomer in an inescapable embrace, there came a sound of scuffling feet and that was all. Pinioned, the big man's voice came triumphantly.

"I've got him."

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wail of despair from the girl.

At the same moment, Garson flashed his torch, and the light fell swiftly on young Gilder, bowed to a kneeling posture before the couch, half-throttled by the strength of Chicago Red. Close beside him, Mary looked down in wordless despair over this final disaster of the night. There was silence among the men, all of whom save the captor himself were gathered near the fireplace.

Stumbled to Feet

Garson retired a step farther before he spoke his command, so that, though he held the torch still, he like the others was in shadow. Only Mary was revealed clearly as she beat in alarm toward the man she had married. It was borne in on the forger's consciousness that the face of the woman leering over the intruder was stronger to hold the prisoner and to prevent any outcry than the might of Chicago Red himself, and so he gave the order.

"Get away, Red."

The fellow let go his grip obediently enough, though with a trifle of regret, since he gloried in his physical prowess.

Then freed of that strangling embrace, Dick stumbled blindly to his feet. Then, mechanically, his hand went to the lamp on the table back of the couch. In the same moment Garson snapped his torch to darkness. When, after a little futile searching, Dick finally found the catch, and the window streamed forth, he uttered an ejaculation of stark amazement, for his gaze was riveted on the face of the woman he loved.

"Good God!" It was a cry of torture wrung from his soul of souls.

Mary swayed toward him a little, palpitant with fear—fear for herself, for all of them, most of all for him.

"Hush! hush!" she panted warningly. "Oh, Dick, you don't understand."

Dick's hand was at his throat. It was necessary for him to speak yet. He had suffered severely in the process of being throttled, and, too, he was in the clutch of a frightful emotion. To find her, his wife, in this place, in such company—her, the woman whom he loved, whom, in spite of everything, he had honored, the woman to whom he had given his name! Mary here! And these!

"I understand this," he said brokenly at last. "Whether you ever did it before or not, this time you have broken the law." A sudden inspiration on his own behalf came to him. For his love's sake, he must seize on this opportunity given of fate to bind for mastery. He went on with a new vehemence of boldness that became him well.

"You're in my hands now. So are these men as well. Unless you do as I say, Mary, I'll jail every one of them."

Did Not Hesitate

Mary's usual quickness was not lacking even now, in the period of extremity. Her retort was given without a particle of hesitation.

"You can't," she objected with conviction. "I'm the only one you've seen."

"That's soon remedied." Dick declared. He turned toward the hall door as if with the intention of lighting the chandelier.

But Mary caught his arm pleadingly. "Don't, Dick," she begged. "It's—it's not safe."

"I'm not afraid," was his indignant answer. He would have gone on, but she clung the closer. He was reluctant to use over-much force against the one whom he cherished so fondly.

There came a diversion from the man who had made the capture, who was mightily wondering over the course of events, which was wholly unlike anything in the whole of his own rather extensive housebreaking experience.

"Who's this, anyhow" Chicago Red demanded.

There was a primitive petulance in his drawling tones.

Dick answered with conciseness enough.

"I'm her husband. Who are you?"

Mary called a soft admonition.

"Don't speak, any of you," she directed. "You mustn't let him hear your voices."

Dick was exasperated by this persistent identification of herself with these criminals in his father's house.

"You're fighting me like a coward," he said hotly. His voice was bitter. The eyes that had always been warm in their glances on her were chill now. He turned a little way from her, as if in instinctive repugnance. "You are taking advantage of my love. You think that because of it I can't make a move against these men. Now, listen to me, I——"

"I won't!" Mary cried. Her words were shrill with mingled emotions. "There's nothing to talk about," she went on wildly. "There never can be between you and me."

Manner Masterful

The young man's voice came with a sonorous firmness that was new to it. In these moments, the strength of him, nourished by suffering, was putting forth its flower. His manner was masterful.

"There can be and there will be," he contradicted. He raised his voice a little, speaking into the shadows where was the group of silent men.

"You men back there!" he cried. "If I give you my word to let every one of you go free and pledge myself never to recognize one of you again, will you make Mary here listen to me? That's all I ask. I want a few minutes to state my case. Give me that. Whether I win or lose, you men go free, and I'll forget everything that has happened here to-night." There came a muffled guffaw of laughter from the big chest of Chicago Red at this extraordinarily ingenuous proposal, while Dacey chuckled more quietly.

Dick made a gesture of impatience at this open derision.

"Tell them I can be trusted," he bade Mary curtly. It was Garson who answered.

"I know that you can be trusted," he said, "because I know you love——" He checked himself with a shiver, and out of the darkness his face showed white.

BREEZY BITS OF BASEBALL BY RILEY

ALTHOUGH the Cleveland Americans are only eight games behind the Athletics this date they are not in the race. Indeed, the Naps are not even in Washington's class, and they have been beaten more than Philadelphia and New York. It is a comparatively easy matter to win games from Washington, but the Naps have failed to do them on their last visit this season. This year they have mastered strange opponents. Two weeks later with one more game each to play they did.

* * *

THE Red Sox and Senators each lost two more games than they won. They took seven games and dropped eight. Thus the abused Yankees did a little better than that breaking even with seven victories and six many defeats. The Athletics did not win enough to consider the body. They only split even, a miserable race for the pennant. They took seven victories and six defeats from Washington, and eight out of ten more. The West games of these teams follow:

* * *

CLEVELAND won eight games to two out of the other Westerners. The Naps record was nine victories and six defeats. Chicago won eight games to four. Detroit won seven games to five. St. Louis won four games to three. Cleveland and Chicago broke even in their series. There was a rather dispute as to which was winning to be Cleveland and Chicago each had won seven games. Neither team knew which was the better of the Eastern clubs.

* * *

THIS gives the American League five teams of which a second could be calling could stand. In Boston Nagle and Hall hoped to win both games so that four could get the majority. Each would be in front if both were to win and it is unimportant so far. But it would be interesting. The Red Sox are far from being out of it. In fact the clubs now holding the first five places are all in the race. They are in it because the defects of all of those in and Philadelphia and Cleveland, who occupy the first two places, are due to circumstances which are likely to improve while the first two teams hold the leading positions only on their pennants. They attach because of weaknesses right around them which, it is safe to say, will not exist long.

* * *

ST. Louis, Detroit and New York, of course, are counted out of the pennant race because of comparative weaknesses in their teams which it does not seem possible can exist the rest season.

* * *

OF the teams lobbing Philadelphia and Cleveland the Red Sox have suffered most from the same causes mentioned above. Had they held up their regular strength in the field and kept it there, they would likely be one of the first three. They would hardly deserve a better place than third, however because of their poor start the slump of their pitching staff and the batting weakness of a couple of their regulars. But they have shown symptoms of improving in these respects. The western trip, by far the hardest seen by Boston in years feared when they left Boston. Has in part made an encouraging when studied in comparison with the work of the other eastern teams.

* * *

THE biggest gap in the race is between the fourth and fifth clubs. So far Red Sox won one or two points behind the St. Louis Browns who are only fifth place as more seriously handicapped than any of the other nine are still pennant contenders. But that gap is not a great fact. It cannot be closed by hard plugging. And right now the teams are so close together that once the gap begins to open a winning streak might take the team right through the bunch to the top.

* * *

THE Sox are due to open a engagement in New York tomorrow. The first double headers are scheduled for next week. The champions are down for nine games that week including the double header on Memorial Day a week from today at Washington.

* * *

ALTHOUGH the eastern clubs of the American League performed with less success in the West than they did last season the western clubs of the National League had a disastrous trip to the East. Philadelphia Brooklyn and Boston all gave them unexpectedly stiff opposition. The Giants did enough but more was expected of them than they contributed to the general quarrel with the home clubs.

* * *

THE Boston Nationals were more successful against the western clubs than their Fenway Park rivals were. They won seven games, lost three and tied one. This was a larger proportion of games won by any American League club and Chicago in the league intersection.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA has gave pitchpath in form strength of nine in which Lee going good. ## Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

PUBLICLY Murphy declared that the Cubs would surely win the National League pennant. ...

WHILE in Boston Murphy "got in bad" with the four Chicago newspaper men who are travelling with the Cubs and reporting games for their papers. He was one of the reporters talking with one of the Chicago players in the lobby of the hotel and rousted up with the announcement that in future none of his players would be allowed to talk with the newspaper men, and that if the scribes wanted any news they must go to Manager Evers. This didn't make a hit with either the newspaper men or the players, and they proceeded to mostly ignore the edict. The players took delight in sneaking out the scribes in the presence of their boss and passing a few pleasant remarks with them.

THIS column had considerable to say about Mr. Murphy last Winter. He is a genial companion, but he "gets in bad" whatever he does or wherever he goes. He simply can't help it. If the National League could get rid of him the organization would do it in a minute. But it can't.

LARRY GARDNER, the Red Sox ...

HUGH BRADLEY is practicing ...

THE Cubs look like a fast team in the field but there is a feeling that a peculiarity of their uniform makes the players seem to get around more briskly than they really do. They wear dark blue uniforms, dark caps and dark stockings, but at the bottom of the stocking is a little band of white which shows very distinctly when the players move about. Even Cy Young and Jim Delahanty would look like mortals in a uniform like the Cubs wear.

SMITH EAGER FOR A BATTLE WITH M'CARTY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23.—"Gunboat" Smith, winner on points in the twenty-round bout with Jess Willard, sent a challenge today to Luther McCarty, "white heavyweight champion," offering to meet him at any time and any place.

"I feel sure that I can take McCarty's measure," declared Smith, "and the sooner he meets me the better I'll like it."

Although outweighed by over fifty pounds and more than six inches shorter than Willard, Smith had but little difficulty in outpointing his man. Smith devoted the first few rounds to "feeling out" his man, and the rest of his time trying to land a knockout punch.

LARGE CROWD AT WOODLAND GOLF MATCHES

Match play in three divisions drew quite a gallery to the Woodland Golf Club this morning. The players in the first flight had some close matches play-ed at scratch, while in the other two flights the handicaps worked out so well that the last green saw the finish of more than one match.

The pairings for the match play in all three flights is as follows:

WOODLAND CUP.

M'CARTY AND PELKY IN BIG BOUT

"HOPES" TO BATTLE FOR TITLE AT CALGARY TOMORROW

CHICAGO, Ill., May 23.—If Burns cannot get fast old time luck again he wants his newest protege, one Arthur Pelky of Chicopee, to have it.

Burns is training the New England man with that end in view and expects him to take a rare old shoving against the sprightly Luther McCarty when they meet in full battle array tomorrow up Calgary way.

Burns, it appears, is still obsessed with that titular bug. In other words, the versatile Tommy, perhaps seeing that he cannot get it back himself, wants at least the credit of turning out the man who can take it away from the present holder and incidentally quite reckon adv he would like to gather the shekels that will accrue from the management of said new phenomenon.

When it comes to being the real Wolcomstein of the ring, commend us to said T. Burns.

Pelky has all the makings, there is little doubt of that. He is certainly said to be only fooled good enough to be meeting McCarty at this time of training out the toughest of the

What Has Gone Before

ON the morning of March 10, Gordon Kelly, a young man from the mountains, who admits that he never played on any club and that he has never seen a game in his life, drops in on Manager Bill Smith of the Atlanta baseball team and asks for a chance on the team. Smith is sceptical, but takes him out on the field. Gordon drives the first ball through the fence and the manager immediately produces a contract.

That same morning Gordon is nearly run down by an automobile, in which are Forrest Cain and Mildred Deery. As it is, his head is hit as he springs aside and he is sent sprawling in the mud. Mildred makes Cain, who is a rich and spoiled young man, turn back, and she tells Gordon how sorry she is for him.

Cain is Mr. Mildred's father, is a wealthy lumber speculator. He owns a large tract of land in the northwestern part of the State, as does Cain, with whom [illegible] a deal. Gordon also owns a big piece, between the two properties, which the others need to make their scheme a success. Gordon is introduced to Deery, who invites him to dinner at his home, where he meets Mildred and makes an engagement for the following Thursday.

CHAPTER VI.—(Continued)

THEY all laughed at this. It was not until Gordon was taking his leave that he managed to have a word with Mildred alone. He said:

"Tell me why you make a mystery of my connection with your adventure of the morning?"

"Sh h," she replied with a sly look. "It's a secret."

"And why wouldn't you allow me to tell of my life in the mountains?"

"Sh h," repeated Mildred with an adorable smile. "That is secret No. 2."

"Won't you tell me?"

"I love so some time."

"By the way, Mr. Kelly," said Deery, coming up to where they stood, "you ought to know some of the young men of Atlanta. If you will take lunch with me tomorrow, I will have you meet one of them. Forrest Cain, who, I know, would be glad to make things pleasant for you while you are in Atlanta."

"Thank you, Mr. Deery," replied Gordon, "I—" He felt Mildred's fingers close on his arm in a slight pressure. "I—I'm obliged to decline. Unfortunately I have another engagement."

Deery noticed the hesitancy, but made no comment beyond, "Well, some other time perhaps."

There were cordial invitations to "come again," at which Gordon said:

"I'm not very well versed in etiquette, Mrs. Deery, but am I not entitled to make a 'party call'?"

"You certainly are," laughed Mrs. Deery, "come and see us the last of the week. What night, Mildred?"

"Come Thursday, Mr. Kelly," said Mildred.

CHAPTER VII.

FORREST CAIN, having nothing in particular to do except amuse himself and having plenty of money to do with, spent considerable time every year in New York. He usually took three yearly trips and sometimes four to the Metropolis, besides spending several weeks there in the hot season. In New York he always lived at the Niagara Club, so called because it fawned on with a roar from day to day and from month to month and from year to year. It never closed its doors. One could get a drink, or a meal, there at any hour of the day or night. Its membership consisted largely of wealthy young men of leisure—the same kind of New Yorkers in New York that Cain was in Atlanta. It was the sort of a club to appeal to a man of Cain's habits and inclinations.

The lure of Broadway and the call of the Niagara Club sounded from afar in the ears of Forrest Cain early in March, and he promptly made preparations for a trip to New York, completely forgetting the promise he had made to Galen Deery to take the young man from the mountains in tow. Transportation was secured for the following Thursday night, Cain engaging a stateroom on a Pullman car. Twice on Tuesday and twice on Wednesday he called up the Deery residence on the telephone, but the maid who answered the ring, after ascertaining who it was that was calling, told him Miss Deery was not at home. Early Thursday night he called up again, with Thursday night he called up again, with the same result. Thereupon he proceeded to his club and spent the few hours before train time with convivial companions. Knowing the habitual inclinations of through Southern trains to be late, he took the precaution, about the time he should have left for the depot, to call up and find out about this particular train and learned that it was nearly two hours behind schedule. He then took another chance at finding Mildred Deery, but the same maid assured him that she was not at home. Requesting that she be informed that he was leaving that night for New York, he hung up the receiver.

He then remembered that he had some orders to give regarding the overhauling of his automobile and walked around to the garage, which was only a short distance from his c[illegible]. He arrived just in time to dodge a smart shower of rain, as he was giving his instructions, the telephone in the office of the garage rang and the proprietor answered it the call. Cain heard half the conversation.

"Yes, this is the garage.—Yes Miss Deery.—Yes, I understand.—I'll have a car around in five minutes.—All right. Good bye."

"Where is she telephoning from?" asked Cain.

"From her home. She has a guest there who evidently doesn't care to walk home in the rain. So much the better for the automobile business. Every little [illegible]."

"And they told me she wasn't at home," said Cain to himself, gritting his teeth. "What do you know about that.' Who was this favored guest, he wondered, and why was he, Forrest Cain, told repeatedly that Miss Deery was "not at home?"

An idea seized him. He would find out for himself. He had more than an hour to spare. His baggage was taken care of and his man, George, was waiting for him at the depot with his gripsack. He would play the role of chauffeur and drive the car to the Deery residence and take the favored guest to his home, after which he would return to the garage and have himself driven to the depot.

"Lend me a coat and cap, Davis," said Cain to the owner of the garage. "I need some air before I get on that stuffy train. I'll drive the car and collect the fare and bring back every penny of it."

Cain was one of the best customers of the garage and he was an expert driver, so the proprietor readily gave his consent. Slipping on a long tan coat and pulling a cap well down over his eyes, Cain climbed into a touring car. The top was up and the curtains were in place to keep out the rain. An employe cranked the car and with Cain at the wheel it moved slowly out of the garage.

Arriving at the Deery residence, Cain sounded the horn to indicate that the car was there. A moment later the front door opened and the figure of a man holding an umbrella to be protected from the smart rain ran down the path to the sidewalk. Cain pulled his cap further down over his eyes and waited for the umbrella to be lowered. An electric light blazed only a few feet away. As he reached the side of the car, the man threw open the door, closed the umbrella with a snap and entered the vehicle. Quick as were his movements in order to avoid the rain, Cain was able to recognize his passenger the same young man he had so nearly run over in front of Ponce de Leon Park in the furious rainstorm of Saturday morning; in short it was, as the reader knows, Gordon Kelly.

"Imperial Hotel," replied Kelly.

As he put the car in motion, wild thoughts filled the mind of Forrest Cain. For the first time in his life he was evidently not having his own way in a matter he had undertaken. Ever since he was old enough to walk he had ruled the Cain household. As a boy he was arrogant and self willed. Since his father died, nine years before, he had shared with his sister the income from a large fortune. His money had enabled him to have everything he wanted. A few weeks ago he had made up his mind to marry Mildred Deery. It is true that she was not aware of this decision, and what her true feelings in regard to him were he did not know, nor did this matter trouble him much. Was he not one of the richest, if not the richest, bachelor in Atlanta? Was he not considered the great "catch"? Why, then, should he not marry the girl that suited his fancy?

Things had gone along swimmingly, he flattered himself, until this young man had crossed his path and had nearly met his death in doing so. He acknowledged to himself that he was a little rough in his talk to the fellow that day and Mildred had taken offense. But he had tried hard to "square" himself—to make amends. Had he not sent her flowers? Had he not repeatedly tried to talk with her over the telephone? Had he not tried twice that very night to do so and was he not told that she was "not at home"?

Cain was boiling with anger as his thoughts reached a sort of climax. She was not at home to him, it seemed, but she was at home to this stranger. Who was this man. How did Mildred find out who he was and where he lived? There must be a stop to the whole business. And he, Forrest Cain, was the man to stop it. Here was his chance. He would—

The car had arrived at the end of the street. To go to the Imperial Hotel a turn should be made to the right. Instead of doing this, however, Cain turned to the left and took a direction that would lead out of town. He speeded up the machine to the limit of its capacity, with a vague idea of intimidating the passenger on the rear seat, and the car flew down a hill at a terrifying pace. Rain was still falling sharply, making the roads wet and slippery and the car rolled and tossed and skidded in an alarming manner.

Cain had no definite idea in view except to drive a considerable distance out of town and have it out with this stranger. Hitherto his money had enabled him to have his way in everything and he had ridden roughshod over every obstacle that presented itself in his path, so that the idea that he was a sort of demi-god had become firmly implanted in his nature. In the case in hand he did not stop to realize that his money was of little use to him. He was blind with rage. He attributed his misunderstanding with Mildred to the passenger in the back seat. Cain resolved to eliminate this stranger from his affairs. He tried to get more speed out of the car, but by this time the roads were growing worse and worse as they got further out of town. They had passed the limit of electric lights and except for the rays of the powerful headlights everything was in inky blackness.

They must have driven all of half an hour and were a good fifteen miles from where they started, when Cain, spying a road that branched off to the left, turned into it. Up to this point Gordon Kelly, in the back seat, had made no movement whatever. He might have been asleep, for all Cain knew. But the car had not traveled a furlong on the branch road before he gave evidence that he was very much awake.

With a spring as light as a panther he vaulted over the back of the front seat and landed lightly beside Cain. Reaching down he switched off the magneto, pulled out the plug and dropped it into his coat pocket. Almost instantly the motor stopped and the car came to a standstill.

CHAPTER VIII.

REACHING down to the coil box, Cain discovered the plug was not there.

"Where's that plug?" he demanded, fiercely.

"I have it in my pocket," replied Kelly, quietly. "Something is likely to happen pretty quick, but as I don't know just what it is, I thought I would be on the safe side, that's all."

"Who are you?" cried Cain.

"I will tell you who I am, but first I want to know if I am talking to a crazy man, a fool, or a joker," answered Kelly. While he was speaking he was fumbling in his pockets. He now drew forth a match which he lighted and held up to the other's face. Cain blew it out almost as quickly as it ignited, but Kelly had seen enough.

"Oh, you're the Deerys' chauffeur," he observed calmly. "You're the man who nearly ran over me the other day. Well, did your employer tell you to drive me out here, or did you do it on your own hook?"

"I'm not a chauffeur," exclaimed Cain, hotly, "I'm a friend of the Deery family and, if you want to know, I brought you here on my own hook. What are you going to do about it?"

"You are certainly a queer sort. What is your object? Is this a hold-up game? Did you bring me out here to rob me?"

"Rob you; no!" shouted Cain. "I can buy and sell you a million times!" The calmness of the man seated beside him acted as a kind of reverse English on Cain. He had been angry all along, but was now furious and gave every indication of losing control of himself entirely.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Thank you, Mr. Deery," replied Gordon. "I——" he felt Mildred's fingers close on his arm in a slight pressure. "I—I am obliged to decline"

Snared!

With the Golden Apple of Love for Bait

BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service

NELL BRINKLEY SAYS

IN this fashion is it done! In the depths of a lovely forest, velveted underfoot in emerald moss and sewn thick with flowers—forget-me-nots, heartease and such like soft names—hide certain wary wights with very fat cheeks and tummies! Over the runways they set their snares—a cunning loop of golden cord—thrown over a high tree bough and down, as high from the ground as—a maid's waist. On the green moss under the shining loop (which is so like a slanting sunbeam that a strolling lady would never catch it in her bright eye in the world) they drop a golden apple. And on the golden apple the sun smites hard enough to enchant and blind a maid with its flame. One malicious wight, the coldest-blooded of all, shins up the tree into the leafy green shadow and lies there with his bow drawn and a keen-tipped arrow necked. The rest fall upon the other end of the cord. They hold their breath, their eyes harden and brighten. The feathery curl on the tip top of one's head waves idly in the wind! One itches his pink heel with the toes of his other foot. One breathes too loud and gets a fat knee in his back for his stupidity. They WAIT—the cord a bit slack. Down the runway comes a maid, with soft black hair, primroses over her ears, a narrow slashed skirt (the better to dance the Tango in), silver buckles on her shoes and an unsuspecting sweet blue eye! And the sun on the golden apple smites into her eyes! The wights behind the tree-bole stiffen and dig their toes into the moss. With a little cry the maid pinches up her silken skirt between a forefinger and thumb and runs swiftly—in a soft rush—she dives down with a greedy hand for the apple in the moss. Her head hovers within the big golden loop. She straightens—ah-h-h down slithers the noose over her shoulders—"Heya"—the wights lean and pull like mad, and my lady's body is twirling in midair, her little heels kicking nothing! "Heya"—the wight in the tree lets his arrow go singing straight to the captive's heart—and another maid is snared!

The first thing after dinner last nite two married ladies calm to call on Ma. Pa & me was there, too. We dident want to stay, but we had to be polite.

You have a nice littel village here, sed Ma to the two ladies. One of them was Missus Jenkins & the other was calmed Missus Jones.

Oh, we do git so tired of it, sed Missus Jenkins. There are so few of our kind of peepul here that we always like to meet peepul of refinement. Most of the peepul here are so common, ain't that, Missus Jones?

He Drank

Hevings, yes, sed Missus Jones. The only other peepul here besides Missus Jenkins and myself is the Browns, & Mister Brown drinks appellack.

I can't say that I blame him much, sed Missus Jenkins, beekaus his wife powders her face & is all the time nagging at him. She goes to Boston prity offen, too. I wuldent think so much of it if her husband went with her, but she goes alone.

That isent very reemarkable, is it? sed Ma. I dare say she goes there to shop.

That's what she says, sed Missus Jenkins, but we think what we please up here. Besides, it seems like she puts on an awful lot of airs going to the city to shop. If her husband paid his bills here it would look a whole lot better, wuddent it, Missus Jones.

Yes, indeed, sed Missus Jones. Don't you think so yourself? she asked Ma.

I am sure I am not interested, sed Ma. She was beegining to act kind of cool, the way she acts sumtimes at breakfast the morning after Pa has went to the Elks. Pa looked kind of cheap, too, after the way he had talked about the peepul in this littel town beeing so broad.

More Scandal.

He is better looking than Missus Baker's boy, sed Missus Jones & I can see he has been fetched up differnt. Harry Baker never had no fetching up to speak of. He won all my boy's marbles playing that awful game of "keeps" last week, but I can't blame him for wanting to gamble. Mister Baker, his father, plays poker and they say he cheets.

Then Ma got busy. She waited till Pa had left the room & she sed Ladies, pity me. The reason my husband left the room is beekaus he doesn't pay his bills & he drinks threes quarts of whisky a day & he plays poker so much that he is beginning to git a curled mustache like the King of Clubs. He beats me, too, sez Ma.

He does! exclaimed the two ladies? He certainly does, doesn't he, Bobbie?

Almost every nite wen he cums hoam, I sed, & he beats me, too.

The village ladies dident stay long after that.

No Provocation

Mrs. McWhuskey (watching a couple spooning)—It's just disgustin'. I'm verra glad ye didna mak' me a fool o' yersel' when ya were walkin' oot wi' me, Sandy.

Mr. McWhuskey—To manuna judge, wife. I hadna the same provocation.

The Real Truth

By FRANCES I. GARSIDE

THE real truth, children dear, is that Sleeping Beauty slept with her mouth open, and snored.

You are always hearing women talk of the "nameless longing" in their hearts, as if it were something beyond the comprehension of mere man. If she is single this nameless longing is for a lover, and if she is married, it is for money.

In the books a woman returns a letter from a discarded lover unread, but in real life curiosity would arouse her from a deathbed, if need be, to break the seal.

In the stories she gives a gulping sob as she leaves the room after a quarrel, and he is Gone Out of Her Life Forever. In real life she has to go to the shop where he works next day to buy sausage, and he waits on her.

The Suffragists in speech and pamphlet tell how wives have to account to their husbands for every penny they spend. If the men had to listen to the account of how their wives spend every penny there wouldn't be insane asylums to hold them.

In the books a girl's neck looks like white marble, and those who see it are driven to writing poetry. In real life a girl's neck causes every housekeeper present to make a mental note to buy spareribs for dinner next day.

In the books a young woman never mentions "the dear old home" without moist eyes, and in real life she never lives in one home more than five years. In the stories there is always a trusted servant, who has been with the family forty years; in reality no servant is kept as long as forty weeks. In fiction a poem or song about "baby's shoe" will cause a woman to dissolve in tears. In real life, if the stork whispers to a woman that he is going to give her an occasion for buying a baby's shoe, she is mad enough to bite nails in two.

The books say a great deal about the "children's hour," a period at twilight when the children climb on mother's or father's knee and listen to fairy stories. In real life, if father is a farmer, he is engaged at this poetic period in feeding the hogs and mother is doing the milking. Or, if they live in town, he is hanging to a car strap and she is running to the delicatessen.

SHOE MACHINE LAWYER UNDER FIRE BY GREGG

The inquiry into the absorption of the shoe machinery business of fifty-five individuals, partnerships and corporations by the United Shoe Machinery Company, which, according to the government allegation, was for the purpose of stifling competition, was resumed today. The Federal prosecutors continued their work in the dissolution suit against the company before Judges Putnam, Dodge and Brown.

N. M. Howard, patent attorney for the United Shoe Machinery Company, was on the witness stand all the forenoon, undergoing cross-examination by William S. Gregg, special assistant to United States Attorney-General McReynolds of the Department of Justice.

Howard was questioned regarding the alleged agreements between the United Shoe Machinery Company and the concerns acquired by that company during 1906.

Judge Putnam issued a formal statement denying that he had any intention of withdrawing from the case and denying also ever having had any such intention. He said:

"The shoe machinery case has proceeded expeditiously and satisfactorily. On Wednesday there was a large mass of exhibits going in, after which everybody desired as little delay as possible. I observed that in England, where there is a trained body of solicitors, the solicitors on both sides, together with the registrar, would have arranged these exhibits so they could go in without delaying counsel or the court.

"I suggested that I and my associates withdraw, simply to give an opportunity to arrange the exhibits. Thereupon Mr. Foster promptly suggested a method satisfactory to all concerned."

BUSINESS MEN AID MAYOR'S PLAN OF TRIPS FOR 100 BOYS

Mayor Fitzgerald is gratified today by assurances from the Boston Chamber of Commerce men that they will assist in carrying out his plan of raising money among business men to give the smartest schoolboys trips during the long vacation period.

The Mayor wants to send 100 boys every Summer to large American or European cities to study trade possibilities, and would have all the expenses subscribed for ten schoolmasters to go with them.

STOCK MARKET AND FINANCIAL NEWS

Stocks were irregular in early trading and the demand was as limited as has been the rule of late. In the local market Boston Elevated was weaker, opening half a point lower and increasing the decline to more than a point within a few minutes. At the end of the first hour it had recovered a fraction and at 85 was just a point lower. By that time Massachusetts Gas was off 1⅛. Calumet & Arizona, Hay Consolidated and Citrous showed small gains, while Boston & Corbin was a shade lower. New Haven rose a trifle.

The New York market weakened and Reading, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Steel, Amalgamated and Lehigh Valley were among the leading stocks quoted lower.

The steadiness of the London market had a depressing effect upon trading on this side.

Little Demand for Stocks.

There was not much demand for stocks in New York when that market opened and while some were steady, price movements were irregular on the whole. In early trading Prisco second preferred was under such pronounced pressure that it declined 2 points to 11. Reading and Union Pacific opened lower but rallied. The price range in most leading stocks was narrow and without significance. Specialties were neglected and the demand for B. R. T. slackened. New York city 4½s sold in fairly large lots at 100⅝.

Westinghouse was strong on its earnings reports and gained half a point. California Petroleum was weak. It opened ⅝ lower. Among earliest declines were Amalgamated ⅛ to ⅜, Atchison ¼, B. R. T. ⅛, Canadian Pacific ¼, Erie ¼, Great Northern preferred ⅜, Pennsylvania ⅛, Reading ⅛, Northern Pacific was ⅛ higher, while fractional gains were also made by Steel common, Union Pacific, American Can and New York Central. Southern Pacific was unchanged. The curb was dull.

Americans and Canadian Pacific were firm in London.

French Public Is Wary.

In regard to financial and trade conditions in France, Louis Aubert, Paris financial correspondent for Hearst newspapers, cables:

"The impression grows that while watching so intently the Balkan imbroglio not enough attention was paid to an economic recession which is now realize for the first time.

"The large decrease in the German, Belgian and American steel trade has not yet reached here, but we are afraid it is coming. This is keeping our market dull.

"Besides, the public is saving its resources for the new French Government loans, but refuses to bite at old stocks."

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market opened firm, with spot up 5s, and futures 2s. 6d.

The Tennessee Copper Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, payable June 20 to holders of record June 10, and it paid $1.50 a share on January 20 last. The directors it is stated, intend to pay extra dividends in addition to the quarterly distribution, if this course is justified by earnings.

Copper producers expect an increase in the domestic demand soon because of the extent of present inquiries. A limited supply of May and June copper in manufacturers' hands is indicated. But the trade is dull now.

Copper exports for the week ending yesterday showed a comparative increase of 1,730 tons.

Financial News in Brief.

It is announced in Berlin that the German portion of the Chinese loan was oversubscribed five times. Yesterday in London there were rumors that the loan had not gone well in the Kaiser's capital.

The Erie road has bought 2500 box cars from the Standard Steel Car Company, for which it will pay $2,800,000.

American Can's net earnings for the first half year are estimated at more than $1,000,000 per month. This will bring the year's total to more than $8,000,000, against $7,500,000 for 1912.

Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific declared a 2½ per cent. extra dividend on its common stock, payable June 15. The regular semi-annual payment was 3 per cent.

Jersey Central's usual special 2 per cent. semi-annual dividend was declared from the earnings of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company.

In order to cut the cost of living, San Francisco is importing meat from Australia. Boston may do this after the Panama Canal is opened.

The Louisville & Nashville road hereafter will not carry liquor from licensed to no-license towns.

The Chemical National Bank of New York will give up United States deposits on June 1 because of the new order of the Secretary of the Treasury requiring National depository banks to pay 2 per cent. interest.

The management of the United States Steel Corporation is considering resuming work on the Birmingham plant, which will cost when completed about $3,500,000. Construction was suspended about eighteen months ago.

It is estimated that June dividend disbursements will total about $105,000,000.

Furnace men expect a big increase in the demand for pig iron soon because stocks in the hands of consumers are practically exhausted.

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,134,000 from the banks yesterday, and has gained $7,430,000 since Friday.

STONE WOMEN IN MILFORD STRIKE RIOT

MILFORD, May 23.—Several women were struck by flying stone and local workmen were bundled off a street car on which they were going to work when strikers today broke loose from leaders and assumed violent tactics.

.. car from Hopkinton, due at 6:30, was ordered to stop by strikers. When the motorman speeded up, the strikers seized rocks and broke practically every window in the car. Several women inside were struck.

A car from Holliston, due at 6:20, was stopped by a group of fifteen strikers on East Main street. They stood on the track and refused to get off. Frank Leland, the motorman, sent the car ahead slowly, and the strikers then swarmed aboard.

FOSS WORKERS MAY ASK AID OF THE MAYOR

A committee of fire workers will again consult with Governor Foss today in an effort to avert a strike of 1,200 employes, which they claim is imminent at the works of the Starteveant Blower Company and the Becker Milling Machine Company in Hyde Park.

Failing in their efforts to induce Governor Foss to grant their demands, they say they will call on Mayor Fitzgerald and seek to have him secure action by the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation.

They point out that this board was very successful in the cases of the Boston Elevated, Telephone and other labor troubles, and think it might prove equally efficient out in Ward 20.

Just Exactly WHAT Would Woodrow Wilson Do in the Desert of Sahara?

He Tells Us Over His Signature That Off by Himself He Would Have "a Fling"—WHAT Fling?

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company

Here is something that ought to interest the young, the old, and the middle-aged.

It is an extract from an article which Mr. Page, Mr. Wilson's Ambassador to England, bought from Mr. Wilson, President of the United States, for publication in a magazine.

The article is headed "The New Freedom." And it is sub-headed "A Call for the Emancipation of the Generous Energies of a People."

We call the attention of an admiring public to the following quotation from Mr. Wilson's article, written for Mr. Page's magazine. We give it verbatim, and we think you will enjoy it:

> You know there is temptation in loneliness and secrecy. Haven't you experienced it? I have. We are never so proper in our conduct as when everybody can look and see exactly what we are doing. If you are off in some distant part of the world and suppose that nobody who lives within a mile of your home is anywhere around, there are times when you adjourn your ordinary standards. You say to yourself: "Well, I'll have a fling this time; nobody will know anything about it." If you were on the Desert of Sahara, you would feel that you might permit yourself—well, say, some slight latitude in conduct; but if you saw one of your immediate neighbors coming the other way on a camel—you would behave you rself until he got out of sight. The most dangerous thing in the world is to get off where nobody knows you. I advise you to stay around among the neighbors, and then you may keep out of jail. That is the only way some of us can keep out of jail.

Have you ever read anything more interesting and charming than that?

What a wide and interesting field of speculation and of moralizing is opened up by the statement that the only way to keep out of jail is TO BE WATCHED.

Our distinguished President says that there is great temptation in loneliness. And if a man isn't WATCHED by his neighbors there is no telling what he will do.

We wonder whether Mr. Wilson was lonely when he sent as Ambassador to England the gentleman who buys magazine articles from him and publishes them?

We wonder also just exactly what Professor Wilson would do if he found himself, as he suggests, in the Desert of Sahara and said to himself, "I'll have a fling this time."

We are respectfully quoting his own words, remember.

What KIND of a fling would he have? Would he and Mr. Bryan, perhaps, say to each other, "Let us forget the grape juice for awhile and try something else!" or what WOULD he do, or what would he suggest?

How does he think it impresses young men to have the President of the United States tell them "if you saw one of your neighbors coming you would behave yourself until he got out of sight"?

And what becomes of the old-fashioned idea that a man of real character is supposed to have certain standards of conduct, whether he find himself in the Desert of Sahara, with no neighbor in sight "on a camel," or whether he find himself in the White House at Washington, with a string of reporters standing at his elbow?

We had thought that there was virtue in the old idea that a man should be the same, whether watched or unwatched. Is that old-fashioned notion to vanish, in what Mr. Wilson calls "The Emancipation of the Generous Energies of a People?"

This newspaper and its readers would like to believe that a man of character REMAINS a man of character, watched or unwatched, and are sorry to hear that the President of the United States wouldn't trust himself in the Desert of Sahara unless there were a near neighbor on a camel to watch him.

This is a funny world, dearly beloved. And Mr. Page, indeed, deserves—from the human, selfish, pecuniary point of view—a first class Ambassadorship, if he is willing to buy opinions of this sort from the President of the United States and pay cash for them.

No "Vindications" for Lorimer and Others

When Senator Lorimer goes before the people to seek a "vindication," as he now proposes to do, he will learn something about the progress of public opinion. Incidentally some of the gentlemen who are now in the Senate will discover that it is no longer popular to be a Lorimer. Mr. Penrose, for example, who still fancies that he has a chance for re-election, will discover that he hasn't. Mr. Warren will learn that he has outlived his usefulness, and the Hon. Elihu Root and even the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge will awaken to the fact that they can never again be elected to office.

For hereafter people will elect United States Senators by popular vote, and they will not choose Lorimers or Warrens or Roots or Penroses or Lodges. Thanks to the exposures of the relations between Senators, past and present, to the Standard Oil Company, made by Hearst's Magazine and by William Randolph Hearst on the stump, and to the revelations concerning Lorimer made by the Hearst newspapers, the people know more about senatorial material than they used to, and the men they send to the Senate must have clean records and keep them clean if they are to remain Senators.

Protecting Lives of Birds—Mrs. Russell Sage, Through the Audubon Society, Is Doing Much Toward Ending the Wanton Killing of Beautiful Creatures

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company

THAT is great and good work which is being done by the widow of one of America's multi-millionaires, Mrs. Russell Sage.

By a special contribution to the Audubon Society in one year, she gave systematic instruction to 10,500 children in bird lore.

Here are some facts about birds, and their value to the world, which these children learn; but which older people do not know or else there could be no such wanton destruction of our beautiful birds as now exists.

Ninety per cent. of the normal bird life of this country has already been destroyed, and the other 10 per cent. will go in the next five years unless drastic measures are employed to stop the slaughter. The farmers and fruit growers of this country are losing over $1,000,000,000 a year by reason of the ravages of insects. Here are a few items in this appalling expense account:

The cotton growers of Texas are losing $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year by reason of the ravages of the boll weevil; and all because the quail and the prairie chicken, the natural enemies of that bug, have been practically exterminated in that great State. The cotton boll weevil is moving like a great army to the eastward and to the northward, and scientists sent down there to study the situation tell us it will go to the Atlantic Ocean before it stops, and as far north as cotton is grown, UNLESS all killing of birds is prohibited. The wheat growers of the United States are losing over $100,000,000 a year by reason of the ravages of the chinch bug. Why?

Quail, Natural Enemy of Bug, Now Almost Exterminated

Because the quail, the natural enemy of that bug, has been almost exterminated. The farmers of the Middle and Eastern States are paying out $15,000,000 a year for Paris green to put on their potato vines. Why? Because the quail, the natural enemy of that bug, has been killed off.

Each of the great apple producing States are paying $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 a year for spraying apple trees, to keep down the codling moth. Why? Because the woodpeckers, the sapsuckers, the robins, the bluejays, the bluebirds, the orioles, the tanagers and other birds that formerly preyed on that insect have been killed off. And every man, woman and child who eats an apple or a potato helps to pay for this poison. Here are a few records as to the value of certain bug eaters: A quail killed in a cotton field in Texas had in his craw the remains of 127 cotton boll weevils. Another killed in a potato field in Pennsylvania had in his craw the remains of 101 potato bugs. Another killed in a Kansas wheat field had in its crop the remains of over 1,200 chinch bugs.

House martins, swallows and swifts eat rose beetles, May beetles, cucumber beetles and house flies, practically all of which are caught on the wing. Otto Widman says 32 parent martins made 3,277 visits to their young with insects in one day. C. C. Musselman saw martins feed their young 312 times in sixteen hours. Mr. Mosher made a record of a pair of yellow throat warblers eating plant lice in a birch tree at a rate of sixty-eight a minute for forty minutes.

At this rate, this one pair of birds would destroy 73,000 of these insects in a week.

Harvey found 500 mosquitoes in the stomach of a nighthawk and sixty grasshoppers in that of another bird of the same species. A scarlet tanager ate thirty-five gypsy moth caterpillars a minute for eighteen minutes; a warbler ate ninety plant lice in a minute, and a pair fed at this rate for forty minutes. A red-winged blackbird had twenty-eight cutworms in its stomach.

Fifty-one species of birds are known to eat hairy caterpillars, and thirty-eight species feed on plant lice. Think of the consequences if the birds were all exterminated. And yet the slaughter of the birds goes on!

In a single season 40,000 terns were killed at Cape Cod, Massachusetts, in order that their skins might adorn the headgear of fashionable women. The swamps in Florida have been totally depopulated of their egrets and herons. In one month over 1,000,000 bobolinks were killed on the marshes near Philadelphia by so-called sportsmen, who call these feathered songsters reed birds. And besides being one of our sweetest singers, the bobolink is one of the most industrious bug eaters we have. In the Southern States both the robin and the bobolink are classed as game birds, and slaughtered by thousands all through the Winter.

Mrs. Margaret M. Nice of Cambridge, Mass., has made an exhaustive study of the food of the Bob White. Instead of killing the bird and analyzing the contents of the crop, she has worked by the living feeding test method. That is, she has offered different foods to the birds and has counted and weighed the amount eaten. The total food for a day forms a natural unit in this work, and a great many of these daily dietaries have been studied.

Laying Hen Eats Thousands of Bugs and Worms Every Day

Among them we may quote a few: 1,350 house flies, eaten in one day by a laying hen, along with weed seeds and green food; also another time 5,000 aphids and 1,285 rose slugs, 37 grasshoppers and 2,400 seeds of pigeon grass, by a six-week-old chick; also 65 large black crickets.

Fitch once computed the number of plant lice on a single cherry tree to be 12,000,000. Chinch bugs have been found in a small clump of bunch grass eight inches in diameter to the number of 20,000. J. F. Parker of Manhattan, Kan., says he counted 6,000 under similar conditions, but had to desist on account of more pressing duties. Riley once computed that the hop aphis, developing thirteen generations in a single year, would, if unchecked to the end of the twelfth generation, have multiplied to the number of ten sextillions.

Surely it is great work for a good woman to do, this educating the growing generation in a knowledge of the value of birds to the prosperity of the country.

No little girl so educated can grow up with a desire to decorate her hat with dead birds; and no boy can ask for a gun in order to amuse himself with killing birds, if he is taught the industrial side of this question as well as the humane side.

Send a stamped envelope to Humane Society, Albany, New York, and ask for leaflets on birds to read to your children.

THE LAST TOWN

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

WHERE is the Town at the end of the Line,
With its lure for the great and the small?
How shall we fare when we come to the sign
That was painted and hung for us all?
Long is the track and we cannot go back
To wait for a faltering friend;
Through meadows and mart we are whirled from the start
To the wonderful Town at the end.

Some reach it in youth on a flying express
That passes the stations of strife,
And others grow gray while pursuing their way
On the laboring locals of life.
Some curse the Conductor and pray for the end,
And some think the pace is too fast;
Whatever the pace, we are nearing the place
Where we all leave the train at the last.

'Tis a mystical Town that no mortal has seen
Till the end of his long earthly ride;
But after the trip there is knowledge to glean
About pomp and possessions and pride.
And perhaps we shall gain when we swing from the train
All the things we were forced to resign,
For the Agent is there, with each passenger's share,
In the Town at the end of the Line.
